The Mosque Of the Murder

On March 21, 1945, I was in the mosque where on Wednesday the bazaar district of Tehran, Iran, in company with Al Smith, sergeant of the Persian Gulf command, and another sergeant, whose peace time job was teaching art. (This was the mosque where on Wednesday Premier Ali Razmara was killed.)

Near the pool, which is in the courtyard of all the mosques of the Shi-ite muslim faith, there sat on a blanket spread on the ground a bearded reader of the Koran. About him squatted perhaps 30 or 40 men, camel drivers, hillmen visiting in town, employees of the bazaars, and so on.

We stopped to look. The reader glared at us, but continued. He talked on for less than a minute and then halted, looking directly at us. All heads turned, anger on their faces. A policeman at the gate came hurrying toward us and urgently motioned us out. Later, a member of the embassy staff explained.

Passion

"The Shi-ites are perhaps the most fanatic of the Moslem faith," he said. "The great moment of their faith is built about the murder of Husain (or Ali) by rivals in a fight over succession to Mohammed. Husain was the husband of Fatima, daughter of Mohammed, and he and his party were besieged in a mosque until driven out by thirst. (Hence the inevitable pool of water at each Shi-ite mosque today.) When wounded he was left there, dying of thirst and wounds, until killed by the warriors who rode their horses back and forth across his body. When the reader reaches this point in the passion of Husain the emotions of the hearers, especially the more illiterate and provincial, are so aroused it is dangerous for an unbeliever to be present."

We likely were in no real danger, but I recall that mosque yet in detail. It was beautiful, yet there was dirt and sloven ugliness about it, too. The pool was dirty and the water green with scum about the edges. Pigeons had grossly fouled its rim and the ground about it. So it was that the assassination of the Premier who worked so carefully with Americans and British, struck me with such force. I could picture it in detail, the crowd at the gate and the group at the pool.

Fanatics

The assassins reportedly were members of the "Fadayan Islam" sect. This is one of the groups discredited with any form of liberalizing their faith. They represent a break with the strict interpretation of the Islamic law and would banish, or kill, any and all unbelievers and dissenters. Ali Razmara has been pushing social reforms, such as breaking up the estates of the ruling class, and it may be said with assurance the assassins were hired, and inflamed to the deed, by this group. The Shah's own family is badly split on the issue—which he pushes. But one of his sisters is bitterly opposed and is believed to have plotted against her brother, seeking to remove him from the throne.

Americans hardly take the time to realize that under our system we have taxed our own wealth to bring about social reforms and to extend them. We have so will it. What creates, and maintains such misery and poverty in the Middle East is the refusal of the small ruling groups in these feudal countries to tax their own wealth. Mohammed Riza, who took the throne in 1941 after his father's abdication, has sought reform, especially since visiting America, and learning more of his problem. His father, an officer in the Cossack brigade, brought off a revolution in 1921 which unseated the ruling house, and others have dreamed of a similar feat.

Iran is a small country of about 650,000 square miles. On its north is the Caspian sea and the USSR. On the South is the Persian gulf and the Gulf of Oman. On the East are the USSR, Afghanistan and Baluchistan, and on the West Iraq and Turkey.

Its history is ancient and colorful, dating to the dawn of written records. It is a country of many peoples, with the strange names of Kurds, Lurs, Bach-tiaris, Turkomans. It is a country of townspeople and nomad. It was the great Persian empire of the sixth century. B. C. Modern Persia dates from 1921.

Oil makes her a strategic nation, as does her geography. She is part of the great land bridge between Asia and Europe, between Asia and Africa.

The Soviets will be most interested in this latest upset to Iranian government. Of late Ali Razmara had been conciliatory toward the Kremlin. It is a chapter of our times.

Allies Roll 4 Miles On Offensive

11,000 Casualties Counted for Reds

By PHIL NEWSOM
TOKYO, March 8—(U.P.)—Allied troops surged forward Thursday in a mighty offensive which gained up to four miles and inflicted more than 11,000 casualties on the Communist enemy in its first day.

Screaming shells and flashing bayonets paved the way. Reports reaching Eighth Army headquarters said the 150,000 Allied troops driving forward along a 70-mile front in Central Korea killed, wounded or captured 11,039 Reds Wednesday, the first day of the accelerated Allied attack.

The casualty toll was the heaviest for any one day this year. It increased reported Red casualties since Jan. 25 to a total of 145,875.

HEAVY BARRAGE
The heaviest artillery barrage of the Korean war paralyzed Chinese defenses at the western end of the offensive front where the U. S. 25th Division pushed northward after throwing a three-pronged bridgehead across the Han River, 15 miles east of Seoul.

Near the eastern end of the line, an infantry company of the Seventh U. S. Division wielding bayonets drove North Korean Reds off a strategic hill west of Amidong.

Capt. Thomas D. Longino, of Columbia, S. C., ordered his men to fix bayonets after a three-hour battle on the slopes of the hill. He said he was "damned tired of those gooks keeping us off the hill like that."

The sight of cold steel terrified the Communists and they fled without a fight.

CREST SEIZED
At another key point on the Allied line, the U. S. 24th Division seized the rugged crest of 6,600-foot "Dragon Door" Mountain, commanding a 50-mile stretch of the west-central front.

The U. S. First Marine and First Cavalry Divisions, with the 27th British Commonwealth Brigade and South Korean forces, threw the Reds off the 15-mile lateral road from Hoengsong to Yongdo and chased them into the hills one to three miles north of the road.

The Marines drove within seven miles of the great Chinese Communist communications center and headquarters town of Hongchun, 49 miles east-northeast of Seoul.

East of Hoengsong, the U. S. Second Division advanced nearly three miles, driving the Reds from a stretch of the Hoengsong-Changpyong road and seizing hills three to five miles farther east.

At the far eastern end of the front, the South Korean Seventh Division held firm on a new line south of the Changpyong-Kangnung road after losing three miles to a North Korean counterattack Wednesday.

General MacArthur toured the Western front Wednesday and declared "there can be no allied or Communist victory in Korea under present restrictions and with present forces committed."

The Supreme Commander of United Nations forces said "vital decisions have yet to be made—decisions far beyond the scope of authority vested in me as military commander."

"The battle line cannot fail in time to reach a theoretical stalemate," MacArthur told newsmen in Korea.

Sabotage Laid To Mechanic

INDIANAPOLIS, March 7—(AP)—Sabotage charges were filed here Wednesday against a Camp Atterbury airplane mechanic accused of disabling two planes.

Harvey G. Foster, special FBI agent, said Sgt. Henry V. Green, 35, of Niagara, Wis., "just wanted to keep the planes from flying."

He said the mechanic denied he wanted to see any airmen injured or killed.

Damage to the two C-46 transport planes was discovered at the Atterbury Air Force Base in mid-January.

Foster said Sgt. Green admitted putting sand in the hydraulic reservoir of one plane and cut out part of the wiring of the other.

Bradley To Retire In Summer, If—
NEW YORK, March 7—(U.P.)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said Wednesday night that if the world situation allows, he will retire from active service this summer.

There have been rumors that the five-star general would like to retire, but this was the first time he had said so in so many words.

Bradley, who has had 40 years service, confided to those attending a reception at which he reviewed his forthcoming book that he wants to do more "hunting and firing."

His book, entitled "A Soldier's Story," is scheduled for Summer publication by Henry Holt and Co., Inc.

Russell Wins Fair-Share Troop Plea

Senate Committees Also Approve Ike

By WILLIAM S. WHITE
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, March 7—The Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees approved in principle Wednesday the dispatch of American troops to Europe, without congressional limitations, to serve in an international force to defend the West.

They accepted the substance of a resolution by which the Senate as a whole simply would endorse President Truman's plans for sending "such units of our armed forces as may be necessary and appropriate to contribute our fair share."

This phraseology, with its broad authorization to the President, was by Sen. Connally, Texas, and Russell, Georgia, the administration's Democratic leaders on the issue.

It survived, intact, by only the barest possible margin—a 12-11 tie vote by which was defeated an effort by Sen. Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts, to put in a stipulation to the effect that "the major contribution" of ground forces would be in the form of "advisers and observers."

Spot Cotton Price at 45.56

The Atlanta Cotton Exchange Tuesday issued its first official quotation on spot cotton since trading was suspended Jan. 26 pending clarification of the OPS price ceiling regulation affecting raw cotton.

The Exchange and U. S. Department of Agriculture reported mixed 15/16-inch middling at 45.56, an advance of 76 points over the 44.75 quotation for Jan. 26, the last quotation before the market closed.

The Exchange and USDA also reported initial re-opening sales as incomplete at 351 bales.

Although there has been some trading in cotton consistently since the Exchange closed, Tuesday's quotation was the first officially since then.

The Atlanta Exchange is one of the 10 Department of Agriculture-recognized spot markets in the nation. It was slated to resume quotations Thursday, but decided to jump the gun.

Collazo Guilty on 4 Counts; Will Appeal for New Trial

By PAUL P. KENNEDY
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, March 7—A verdict of guilty on each of four counts, two of which carry a mandatory death penalty, was returned by a Federal Jury Wednesday afternoon on Oscar Collazo, Puerto Rican nationalist who participated Nov. 1 in an attempted assassination of President Truman. The jury deliberated one hour and forty-two minutes.

Leo A. Rover, chief defense counsel, immediately announced he would ask for a new trial within the five days allowed for such a petition. Denied this, he said he would appeal the verdict to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Collazo will not be sentenced until the new trial petition is heard.

The first two counts of the four-count indictment on which Collazo was tried charged him with murder in the death of Leslie Coffelt, a White House guard killed in the Nov. 1 shooting in front of Blair House. The prosecution conceded Coffelt had been killed by Griselle Torresola, another nationalist, but it held Collazo, as a co-conspirator in the shooting, was equally guilty. Torresola was killed by White House guards in the exchange of shots.

The first count charged premeditated murder. The second count charged murder in the commission of the crime of breaking into the Blair House, temporary residence of President Truman.

This count also charged Collazo and Torresola with attempting "to murder the President."

On the witness stand, Collazo had insisted he and Torresola had staged the shooting affair as a "demonstration" and had not intended to molest the President.

Judge T. Allen Goldsborough, in his instructions to the jury, forbade it emphatically to consider patriotic motives as a defense of Collazo's actions.

Senate Sets Military Lid At 4 Million

Ignores Protest Of Staff Chiefs

By HAROLD B. HINTON
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, March 7. The Senate voted Wednesday, 49 to 41, to place a ceiling of 4,000,000 men and women on the armed forces to be raised and maintained during the current rearmament movement. Congress voted last August to suspend ceilings until 1954.

The 49 Senators, 37 Republicans and 12 Democrats, who insisted on restoring Congressional control of the numerical strength of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps, did so in disregard of the advice of Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall and of three of the four members of the joint chiefs of staff.

Democratic leaders, through an agreement limiting debate, hope for final passage of the draft bill by Thursday night.

In the six days the Senate has had the universal military service and training bill under consideration, it has reached the following definitive decisions: To authorize induction of men at 18, but only after local draft boards had exhausted their manpower pools from 19 to 26; and set a top limit of 4,000,000 on the country's armed strength.

MORSE AMENDMENT
Wednesday's maneuvering started when it came to vote, by previous agreement, on an amendment to the draft bill offered by Senator Wayne Morse, Republican, of Oregon, to set the ceiling at 3,500,000. It had been opposed by Senator Richard B. Russell, Democrat, of Georgia, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, and Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, Democrat, of Texas, chairman of the Preparedness Subcommittee.

Mr. Russell said it would be "almost criminal" to set a limit as low as 3,500,000. He added that a vote to set a ceiling would amount to a vote of "no confidence" in the country's highest military leadership.

Mr. Johnson read to the Senate letters of opposition from Secretary Marshall, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Gen. J. Lawton Collins, chief of staff of the Army, and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, chief of staff of the Air Force. Secretary Marshall, speaking of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, wrote that "these men cannot fulfill their responsibility if an arbitrary limit is set on the size of our forces."

SEES GREAT DANGER
"To tie the hands of our responsible leaders and strip them of any flexibility in manpower goals is a highly dangerous procedure," he continued. "Congress always controls the purse strings, but the proposed procedure goes far beyond that check."

"The Armed Forces have never been throttled with a mandatory ceiling in the midst of a period of emergency."

Gen. Bradley based his objection on security grounds.

Such a limitation on the mobilization of our armed strength," he said, "Gives the Soviet Union the greatest single factor that any nation could have which would plot the downfall of the United States through attack by armed aggression."

To forestall a vote on the Morse amendment for 3,500,000 Senator Brian McMahon, Democrat, of Connecticut, moved to substitute a ceiling of 5,000,000. This substitute was voted down, 56 to 32.

Senator A. Willis Robertson, Democrat, of Virginia, jumped into the breach with a substitute of 4,000,000. It was adopted by a vote of 49 to 41.

Navy Plane Missing With 14 Aboard

ROME, March 7—(AP)—A U. S. Navy Privateer PB-4Y2 plane with 14 persons aboard disappeared in a storm Wednesday afternoon and was still missing Wednesday night.

The plane left the Campo Formido military airfield near Udine, in the Trieste neighborhood, late Wednesday morning. It was due in Rome a little more than an hour later.

Ten minutes before its scheduled arrival, the plane radioed Ciampino airfield here that it had trouble with one of its four engines 10 miles from Rome. That was the last word.

Italian planes and ships immediately began a search of the storm-swept coastal area north and northwest of Rome. Air officials speculated that the Privateer must have fallen into the sea because there had been no report of a crash from any village in the area.

Thus in the unusual method of Muscovite bargaining, with which the Western powers have fortunately become very familiar, Gromyko permitted these talks to move from the purely stagnant and propagandistic phase of Tuesday to the verge of what may result in some diplomatic negotiation.

Were such a change in psychology to occur, an agenda may in the end be arranged which could permit the council of foreign ministers to meet again. It is too early to forecast any results.

Nevertheless, the USSR has now moved from the position of ignoring the subject of Austria—despite the fact that it was in Moscow that the Allies agreed in November, 1943, to work for the freedom of that country—to a conditional discussion of the subject. Whether

Board Votes To Review All Licenses

By BILL DIEHL

Fulton County Commission Wednesday demanded in three separate motions a complete and exhaustive investigation, starting Monday, into January-February grand jury charges of corruption and graft in the sprawling "liquor empire."

The meeting was highlighted by motions, counter-motions and disputes over what should and should not be included in the investigation and Board action. But the Commission, in one of the hottest sessions on record, finally passed motions which will:

1. Require that new applications be made for all licenses, including those up for renewal on June 30, 1951, and that they be awarded licenses for only a six-months' period.

2. Revise the present liquor license application blank to insure complete investigation into all applicants for a period of not less than five years, including financial ability of applicants, character references and employment information.

3. Cancel all licenses now in force which were obtained under any circumstances of fraud and refuse any license in the future which contains any questionable information.

4. Launch a thorough review of all testimony and presentments made by the January-February grand jury as well as any other evidence furnished by the public or any law enforcement agency.

5. Create a special committee to investigate exhaustively all charges made by the grand jury. The committee would be composed of a representative of the new grand jury, Solicitor-General Paul Webb, a representative of the Atlanta Christian Council, and one member of the Atlanta bar to be appointed by a judge of the Superior Court. Members of the investigating committee will be named later in the week as soon as the organizations which they will represent are contacted and have a chance to select a representative.

6. Prevent any establishment from transferring any liquor license, beginning immediately.

The main resolution establishing the investigation and its subsequent activities was submitted by Comm. I. Gloer Hailey, who was prominently named in the spectacular Grand Jury presentments.

Two separate resolutions, one naming the members to serve on the committee and the second prohibiting license transfers, were offered by Comm. R. L. "Shorty" Doyal, who was also under fire in the presentments.

Prefacing his resolution, Hailey stated: "This resolution should meet the spirit of the grand jury's recommendations and should certainly satisfy anyone who wants to throw the spotlight on these liquor questions. It will also throw a cloak of protection around the county."

The motion was seconded by Comm. Jim Aldredge and approved unanimously.

A note of discord entered the Georgia Rail Tax Ruling Favors State

By HOKE SMITH MAY

The State Wednesday won a decisive round in a 100-year-old battle to collect back property taxes from the Georgia Railroad and Banking Company. Taxes and fees sought for the State, 14 counties and 20 municipalities at present total $1,500,000.

Judge C. G. Anderson, of Richmond Superior Court, handed down the decision in Augusta. It was the first time since the then U. S. Sen. Robert Toombs instituted suit in 1874 that court ruled decisively in favor of the State.

According to figures compiled by the State Revenue Department, Atlanta's share would be $69,767.75.

Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook and Deputy Atty. Gen. H. A. Blackshear, who handled the suit, said railroad attorneys plan to take the case to the State Supreme Court.

History of the case dates back to the Yazoo Fraud, in which the Georgia General Assembly sold most of what is now Alabama and Mississippi to private individuals for $500,000.

Following the Yazoo incident, the Legislature wrote into the Constitution an amendment to prohibit the General Assembly from relinquishing its sovereign power without a vote of the people.

In 1833, the Legislature chartered the Georgia Railroad Company, and exempted it from all taxes except one-half of one percent of its net income.

However, in 1839, the charter was changed to establish the Georgia Railroad and Banking Company. The new charter did not mention the tax question.

Major points in Judge Anderson's opinion centered around the new charter and the Constitutional action taken following the Yazoo Fraud.

He ruled that, under the 1798 amendment, the Legislature could not exempt the railroad from taxes because that, in effect, would be relinquishing the sovereign power of the Assembly.

He also said the first company charter, exempting the railroad from the tax, was not valid because of the later charter.

Counties and municipalities other than Atlanta and back taxes which the State is seeking include:

DeKalb, $27,932; Rockdale, $11,946; Newton, $23,206; Walton, $6,166; Morgan, $34,464; Greene, $26,622; Oglethorpe, $15,925; Clarke, $2,292; Talbot, $11,549; Warren, $20,279; McDuffie, $17,683; Columbia, $16,664; and Richmond, $76,711.

Decatur, $6,081; Clarkston, $952; Stone Mountain, $5,259; Lithonia, $4,614; Conyers, $6,051; Covington, $5,534; Social Circle, $9,301; Rutledge, $2,883; Madison, $7,857; Greensboro, $6,462; Union Point, $4,646; Crawfordville, $2,080; Norwood, $1,463; Camak, $4,702; Thomson, $3,907; Harlem, $2,705; Augusta, $73,916; Crawford, $3,060; and Athens, $12,321.

The assassination was the climax of weeks of political agitation in which nationalistic Iranians showed growing resentment against the Premier because he opposed nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. The best sources, however, believed Communists were not involved.

The gunman, Abdulla Rastegar, a 26-year-old carpenter, and three suspected accomplices were arrested on the spot. One policeman was wounded as they closed in.

Informal sources identified Rastegar as a member of Fadayay Islam (Crusades of Islam), a fanatical Moslem sect. His crime could easily upset the tranquility of this strategic, oil-rich country.

The semi-official newspaper, Ettelaat, reported that when police asked Rastegar why he shot Razmara, he replied: "Why do you give the country to foreigners so that I must do this deed?"

Speakers at a Fadayay rally last Friday cursed Stalin, President Truman and King George VI in demanding an end to foreign interference in Iran.

Young Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi immediately named as acting premier 70-year-old Khalil Fahimi, a former governor-general of Azerbaijan Province, Iran's trouble spot bordering Russia.

Fahimi at once ordered the armed forces and all officials to carry on with the "utmost care" and strength—as a precaution against inspired disorder among Iran's 15,000,000 people.

President Truman and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin expressed profound shock at the death. President Truman said at Key West that Razmara was "a sincere friend of our country."

U. S. Undersecretary of State James Webb said the "brutal murder is a serious loss to the cause of freedom and social justice." He declared the Premier was devoted to the independence and the social and economic reform of his country.

The 50-year-old Razmara left his job as the army's chief of staff and took over as Premier last June 26—the day after the invasion of South Korea—with open American support and with high promises of reforms in a graft-ridden government and poverty-stricken land.

His program largely bogged down, however, in a maze of opposition from wealthy landlords, office holders, influential tribal leaders and political opponents who whispered that he had dictatorial leanings.

These jealousies apparently had been whipped up anew by an unconfirmed report that Razmara intended to dissolve the uncooperative Majlis (parliament) Thursday.

He was killed about 10:40 a. m. when he went to the Shah Mosque in the bazaar quarter with a few officials to attend the funeral of Ayatollah Faiz, a religious leader.

An eyewitness, former press department director Esfandiar Borzomehr, gave this account: As Razmara walked into the courtyard at the entrance to the mosque, the assassin stepped out of a crowd of several hundred and fired four shots from close behind the premier.

The first shot struck the premier in the back of the head and apparently killed him instantly. The second bullet took effect in his neck.

The other two shots missed the Premier, but one wounded a policeman who tried to grapple with the assassin.

Other police surrounded the killer and arrested him. They also arrested three alleged accomplices.

British to Call 60 Ships Back To Active Duty

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

LONDON, March 7—The Labor government, which is still smarting from the outburst of public annoyance over the appointment of an American instead of a British supreme naval commander in the Atlantic, announced Wednesday that the Royal Navy would be increased this year by 60 ships, drawn from reserves.

These will include two destroyers, two frigates, three submarines, eight ocean and seagoing minesweepers, plus some smaller minesweepers, minelayers and ancillary craft. L. J. Callahan, parliamentary secretary to the admiralty, told Commons. In addition, he said, one light fleet carrier, one destroyer, one landing ship headquarters and three anti-submarine frigates will be brought forward this year for trials and training.

These indications that Britain's rearmament is becoming a fact came on the day that had originally been set for the annual parliamentary debate over the next year's naval estimates. However, government leaders postponed this debate until next week when it is hoped that more information on the senior commands will be available and tempers will have cooled down.

Soviet Gets $24 Billion Defense Plea

Arms Budget Up 3 Pct. Over 1950

By HENRY SHAPIRO
MOSCOW, March 7.—(U.P.)—Finance Minister Arseny Zverev submitted to Parliament Wednesday night a 1951 budget calling for defense expenditures of 98,376,000,000 rubles (nominally $24,094,000,000).

The proposed defense spending is 21.3 percent of total expenditures as compared to 18.5 last year.

Coupled with the budget presentation was the charge Western powers are preparing for a third World War. Zverev said the slightly higher amount assigned for defense spending was necessitated by a "wild armaments race" in which the United States, Britain and France were spending most of their budgets for war.

The Finance Minister said Russia was fighting for peace.

Zverev presented to a joint session of the two houses of the Supreme Soviet or Parliament—the Council of the Union and the Council of Nationalities a budget which listed:

Expenditures — 451,503,000,000 rubles ($112,875,750,000).
Revenues — 457,892,000,000 rubles ($114,498,000,000).
Surplus — 6,489,000,000 rubles ($1,622,250,000).

Premier Josef Stalin, V. M. Molotov and all other members of the Politburo along with the diplomatic corps were present at the session.

In an editorial commenting on the budget Wednesday, before its formal presentation in Parliament, the government newspaper Izvestia said:

"While the budgets of countries in the imperialist camp impose unbearable tax burdens on workers and allocate colossal expenditures in preparation for a new war and the suppression of liberation movements in colonial and semi-colonial areas, the Soviet budget testifies to the peaceful aspirations of the Soviet people and its efforts to defend the peace of the whole world."

The pattern of Soviet defense expenditures has been: 1940, the last year before Germany attacked Russia, 32.6 percent; 1946, the first postwar year, 23.9 percent; 1949, 19 percent; 1950, 18.5 percent; 1951, 21.3 percent.

Cabinet Crisis Again Goes To Queuille

By LANSING WARREN
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

PARIS, March 7.—Ex-Premier Henri Queuille, asked for a second time to seek to end the French cabinet crisis, Wednesday had accepted and was working hard with party leaders to induce them to accept a compromise on the electoral reform, and with some chances of success.

Whereas Guy Mollet, Socialist General Secretary who met with defeat in the National Assembly, sought to put the electoral issue aside and concentrate on economic and social measures, M. Queuille has started in this time to get an agreement on the main dispute. He is especially fitted for this task since he has been concerned with mediation of the question since the electoral issue first came to the fore last Spring.

Queuille, moreover, is a leader of the Radical party, one of the principals in the present dispute, and, if he can win over his followers to a compromise, the intricate cabinet crisis will be solved.

During the Summer, Queuille made efforts to get the compromise. The Popular Republicans made the concession of accepting a majority system instead of the Communist fostered proportional voting system. But the Popular Republicans would not accept two-ballot elections. M. Queuille failed to get the Radicals to move from their position which, as now, was against any but the double system.

Wilson Aide To Resign

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, March 7.—W. Howard Chase, a chief assistant to Charles E. Wilson, Director of Defense Mobilization, will resign his governmental post to resume his position as Director of Public Relations for the General Foods Corporation.

Chase Wednesday confirmed reports of his impending resignation from the mobilization position but denied reports that his action was prompted by dissatisfaction with the agency's policies.

According to Washington rumors, Chase has not been pleased for some time over public relations policies which have prevailed in the office of Defense Mobilization. Chase explained that he had come to Washington to help out on the defense program for "two or three months" early last Fall and had remained well beyond the time specified.

Labor Rift With Wilson May Widen

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Organized labor's quarrel with the conduct of the defense program seemed likely Wednesday to become a drawn-out feud between the labor leaders and Charles E. Wilson, Director of Defense Mobilization.

Eric Johnston, Economic Stabilization Administrator, is giving most of the present week to work on the wage stabilization issue, but the prospects of bringing labor back into the rest of the defense program generally seemed as remote as ever.

"I'm damned if I know what they want," Wilson told a reporter who tagged him at the Capitol with a question about the labor leaders' criticism of him and the program. He acknowledged the prospects of a settlement "don't appear to look any brighter at the moment."

Labor members representing the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and the Railway Labor Executives Association walked off the Wage Stabilization Board three weeks ago, and later withdrew from other defense agencies in protest against what they called "big business" domination and the 10 percent limit on general wage increases.

Wilson went to the Capitol for a luncheon with Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, democrat, Minnesota, who is known for his friendly attitude toward labor. Sen. Humphrey said, he told Wilson labor ought to have a policy-making role in mobilization. He declined to say what Wilson told him.

The mobilization chief, apparently satisfied with his meeting with President Truman at Key West, Fla., Tuesday, may broadcast his views on the quarrel with the labor leaders Monday night. The United Labor Policy Committee has had at least one spokesman on the air nightly this week and has other radio and TV engagements booked for the next few days.

Squelched by Dad, Boy, 4, Proved Right

BOSTON, March 7.—(U.P.)—A four-year-old boy looked out his bedroom window Wednesday and his eyes popped and he ran downstairs.

"Daddy," said Anthony T. Bombardieri, "Daddy, there's a big fire in our house." Daddy patted the boy and smiled and mother smiled and said Anthony had better sit up to the table and have his breakfast along with his six-year-old brother, Peter. Peter went on eating.

"Daddy," the little boy said, "there's a fire and . . . Everybody smiled again and passed Anthony a dish of cereal.

Just then there was a knock on the door. Daddy opened it and a passerby said: "Your house is on fire."

Ex-Atlanta Teller Gets 18 Mos.

CHICAGO, March 7.—(U.P.)—A former Atlanta, Ga., bank teller was sentenced to 18 months in prison Wednesday when he pleaded guilty to embezzling $6,724.61. William O. Jones Jr., 22, cashed a check for that amount on the C. and S. National Bank at Atlanta on Aug. 6, 1949 while employed there.

Jones told Judge Philip L. Sullivan in Federal Court he had "a sudden impulse" to take the money.

How You Gain By Being a Stockholder...

When you own shares of stock in a company, you're entitled to a share in the profits it makes and pays to stockholders. You're a part owner!

Being a stockholder means that your money is working for you, in most cases earning a better return—4% or 5% for instance—than it could if you just set it aside. And when prices are going up, the dollars you just set aside may not buy as much later on.

But dollars invested in stock are more likely to keep their purchasing power, because as food prices and auto prices and real estate prices go up, so usually—over the years—do prices of stocks.

It's good for the whole country when lots of people own stock. It means that American business is working for more people. That's economic democracy.

SUN ECLIPSE — Here's how it looked Wednesday in Pittsburgh. This picture was made starting at 5:15 p. m. with exposures at 10-minute intervals.

Clouds Dim View Of Sun's Eclipse

At any rate, Atlanta saw the best part of Wednesday's partial eclipse of the sun by the moon. Clouds obscured the phenomenon during most of its two-hour duration. But at 5:20 p. m. they fell away, leaving it clearly visible to the naked eye in maximum eclipse.

At Agnes Scott Dr. W. A. Calder, the college's astronomer, watched with a group of students through a telescope. He said at 5:20 the moon covered about one-third of the sun which looked like it had been "nicked."

U. S. Casualties in Korea Increase 1,773 in Week

WASHINGTON, March 7—(AP)—Announced American casualties in the Korean war reached 52,448 Wednesday, an increase of 1,773 in a week.

The total, representing notifications to the next of kin through March 2, included 7,857 killed in action, 34,692 wounded and 9,899 missing in action.

The wounded included 911 who died of their wounds and 85 among the missing are known dead, making a total of 8,853 deaths.

The missing figure also included 980 men who have since returned to U. S. military control and 110 known prisoners of war, leaving 8,724 currently missing.

Total Army casualties rose 1,442 during the week, reaching 43,598. Navy losses increased by six to a total of 596. Marine Corps casualties were up 110 to a total of 7,838. Total Air Force casualties reached 416, an increase of 10 over last week.

These figures cover losses designated as battle casualties but do not include certain other losses, such as those resulting from disease and frostbite.

In this connection, the Army said Wednesday 54,051 men had not returned to full duty status as a result of all types of casualties. That total was based upon no battle casualty reports through Jan. 26 and battle casualty figures through Feb. 28.

PEARSON REPORT HIT

The Army statement was issued in reply to statements made in Commentator Drew Pearson's column which the Army said "are irresponsible by any standard."

Caressed Stone Lion Yields Coin Cache

LONDON, March 8—(AP)—A laborer proved Wednesday that it pays to be nice to animals—even an eight-ton stone one.

He scratched the back of the famed old "Lion of Hungerford"—now being refurbished for exhibition at the Festival of Britain—and discovered a secret compartment. The niche, long sealed by dozens of coats of red paint, yielded a bottle containing some coins dating back to William the Fourth (1830-1837) and a note which hasn't been deciphered yet.

For more than a century and a quarter, the red lion graced the roof of a Thames-side brewery.

Pearson is on vacation and the column was prepared by his staff.

The Army termed "absolutely false" a statement in the column that nearly 12,000 men are missing who have not been listed in the casualty reports and that most of these disappeared during the December retreat from Seoul.

The Army also labelled as "absolutely false" another statement that the late Gen. Walton Walker was not officially counted as a casualty because he was killed in a jeep accident. The Army said the former Eighth Army commander was reported as a casualty and the cause of death was listed as "injuries received in action."

FROSTBITE CASES

The Army agreed with the column's statement that 5,300 frostbite cases were not included on the published casualty lists.

The Army recalled, however, the figure for frostbite cases was made public Feb. 2 and said cold-weather cases were classed as nonbattle casualties.

The irresponsible implication by the Pearson column on this point is that the military services have attempted to hide or confuse this condition," the Army said.

The Army said battle and nonbattle casualties were considered separately for "the obvious reason that a large majority of nonbattle casualties are returned to duty after treatment." The Army recalled an announcement Feb. 2 that 85 percent of its nonbattle and disease casualties had returned to duty.

The French here and in Morocco have branded the reports as "fantastically untrue," and Egyptian officials admit they have no confirmation of the reports. But the Egyptian Chamber of Deputies Tuesday unanimously voted a resolution expressing "deep indignation against the violence and severe acts committed by the French authorities" in Morocco.

The bitterness of the issue arises out of recent announcements that France had reached an agreement with the Sultan of Morocco aimed at giving the people a greater voice in Government affairs and stripping the Sultan of some of his powers. The Arab Bloc charges that the French coerced the Sultan into the agreement and used force to smash an independence movement.

Defense Class Set March 16

First classes in a Civil Defense training program will start in Atlanta Friday, March 16.

George M. (Pup) Phillips, metropolitan Atlanta Civil Defense Director, said Wednesday plans have been completed for a 32-hour course for 125 zone directors of air raid wardens.

Classes will be held from 7:30 until 9:30 p. m. each Tuesday and Friday night. Phillips, Capt. C. E. Mitchell and George H. Brodnax, Jr., will act as instructors.

The group will be gathered from Fulton, DeKalb, Cobb and Clayton Counties, which comprise the Atlanta defense area.

Fire and rescue procedures will be stressed as well as first aid courses.

ACTRESS DOESN'T MIND

Clare and Claire Share Ludicrous Luce Mixups

Sharing a name with another career woman has its complications—and its virtues, as well—one of America's noted stage actresses commented upon arrival here Wednesday for a Penthouse engagement.

Clare Luce, the actress, said she and Claire Booth Luce, the ex-congresswoman, "had each other's dates, read each other's mail and kept their money in the same bank. . . . And it had developed into quite a problem."

"I have been in Paris and London and New York at the same time as the congresswoman and we have been mistaken for each other on every turn. . . . My pictures (theatrical) poses, of course, were used in her campaign, I know. . . . But she is a lovely person and I don't really mind," said the actress who recently returned to America after playing Shakespeare in one of England's outstanding showcases.

As Miss Luce polished off an order of crabmeat au gratin, she commented briefly on television, saying she had to keep her waistline down in order to appear in video dramas. Her figure looked a trim size 12, however.

She said she felt teevee was doing a grand job of presenting drama. But she expressed a keener interest in the arena theater, which is something new to her. She will share top billing with John Loder, former husband of Hedy Lamarr, in "For Love Or Money."

"I just have a tidbit of a part here, and a tidbit there," Miss Luce said.

But regardless of how big her part will be, Atlanta theatergoers already have begun a run on seats in the Penthouse Theater to see Clare Luce.

Flier's Widow Wins 2 Girls; Will Called Her Adulteress

LOS ANGELES, March 7—(U.P.)—Gertrude Gandin Dobreer, 27, accused by her husband in his will of committing adultery with his best friend, won custody of her two daughters Wednesday, but the judge called her "a heartless girl."

Superior Judge Arthur Crum awarded custody to the mother at the end of a bitter court battle between Mrs. Dobreer and the sister of her late husband, Air Force Capt. David Gandin, 32.

Gandin was killed Oct. 19 when his B-29 bomber crashed at Okinawa while taking off on a bombing run to Korea. He left a will and codicil accusing his estranged wife of carrying on an "adulterous affair" with medical student David Dobreer.

The will said Gandin divorced his wife last May and was given custody of their daughters, Leslie, 4, and Betty Dee, 23 months. Gandin asked that the children be turned over to his sister, Mrs. Irving Jaffe, 37.

Mrs. Dobreer married the medical student two months ago. She denied the adultery charge and testified she told Gandin she was no longer in love with him.

In a lengthy statement following the trial, Judge Crum said Mrs. Dobreer was a "more or less heartless girl" and was willing to let Gandin have custody of the children until he died.

Ailing Levant Limp to Piano, Wins a Thunderous Ovation

By HOWELL JONES

Oscar Levant made his delayed appearance with the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra Wednesday night at the Auditorium and won a tremendous ovation.

The well-known pianist, author and comedian played the extremely popular Grieg "Concerto in A-Minor for Piano and Orchestra" and George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," plus a generous share of encores. His appearance was delayed almost two weeks due to an illness which confined him in California.

Obviously tired and showing effects of his recent illness, Levant appeared hardly able to negotiate the distance between the entrance door and the piano in the center of the stage. But once at the keyboard, he became a ringing torrent of strength. As a matter of fact, he assaulted the instrument with powerful strokes that produced music of heroic character. The finesse, however, was missing.

He played the second section of the program with a bandaged right thumb. The bandage covered an injury apparently sustained in the playing of the Grieg Concerto.

Maestro Henry Sopkin and the orchestra provided excellent accompaniment for their soloist. In addition, Conductor Sopkin led light of the orchestra section, strings provided their usually good tuned unusually good work by the work to make the symphony out-brass and woodwind sections. The standing.

PEACE AGENCY

Missionary Force Hailed

As long as UN troops are associated with such terms as "Occupation Killer," this country will "never be a potent force for peace," Mrs. M. E. Tilly told delegates to a Women's Society of Christian Service training session here Wednesday night.

Mrs. Tilly told Methodist women their far-flung missionary force was "the greatest peace agency in the world, more powerful than bombs and tanks and guns." She urged that the force be increased and that WSCS members on the home front be "dreamers with shovels."

More than 100 delegates, representing 30,000 WSCS members throughout North Georgia, will conclude a two-day conference at the Piedmont Hotel Thursday.

Time Publisher Defies Dictator

NEW YORK, March 7—(U.P.)—Time Magazine said Wednesday night that it intends to report the news from Argentina, whether President Juan D. Peron likes it or not.

"News about Argentina will be printed in Time . . . despite interference by the government of Juan Peron," said Publisher James A. Linen in his weekly letter to Time readers.

Linen's statement was prompted by the arrest last week of the Time-Life reporting team of Frank Shea and Leonard McCombe who had covered the rioting around the publishing plant of La Prensa, Buenos Aires newspaper.

Shea and McCombe later were released but their photographs of the rioting were confiscated.

La Prensa Employees Appeal to Peron

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 7—(U.P.)—Employees of the newspaper La Prensa asked President Juan D. Peron Wednesday to step in and end the controversy which closed the independent newspaper 41 days ago.

Workers and employees of the paper sent a petition to Peron asking him to solve an impasse between La Prensa and the News Vendors' Union and guarantee their right to work.

U. Center Names 4 New Trustees

Four new members have been elected to the Board of Trustees of the University Center in Georgia, Inc. Dr. Raymond R. Paty, Chairman, announced Wednesday. New members are: Pope Brock, counsel, Coca-Cola Company; Robert C. Mizell, director of development and finance, Emory University; Frank H. Neely, chairman of the board, Rich's Inc.; and John A. Sibley, chairman of the board, Trust Company of Georgia.

The University Center in Georgia was established in 1938 to promote co-operative enterprises among institutions of higher learning in the Atlanta-Athens area.

Name Teacher For Transport Unit of ROTC

Lt. Col. D. J. Richardson has been named acting professor of military science and tactics for a transportation unit of the ROTC to begin in September at the Atlanta Division of the University of Georgia.

He holds that position at present for Fulton County High Schools.

Lt. Col. D. D. Brodie, of the Adjutant General Corps, Department of the Army, characterized the Army's ROTC program as an excellent means for creating an interest in the military and developing potential military leaders.

Enrollment in the required course at the Atlanta division is expected to reach 300 in September. Enrollment will be limited to day students, with graduates commissioned second lieutenants in the Transportation Corps.

It was explained that enrollment will not actually defer a student from the draft, although good standing in the unit will weigh favorably toward deferment. Uniforms will be supplied and unit members paid $1 a day the last two years, during the school term.

The Atlanta division was one of 36 schools selected for an ROTC unit from 325 application throughout the country. It was one of the 25 new schools approved.

Tony Martin Show
Comedy Hour's Best

By PAUL JONES

A friend of ours got to talking teevee en route to town the other day and the conversation turned naturally to the Comedy Hour—WSB-TV's big $60,000 a week extravaganza which is viewed each Sunday night at 8.

This teevee came up with an opinion which lived to a tee with one we had developed about the Tony Martin performance last Sunday night. Both of us thought Tony's show was by far the best of the CH season.

Why? It was simply that Tony's show was the least bit frightened by the fact that he was starring on the biggest show in television. He wasn't overcome with a "big" complex such as has awed Jerry Lewis, Eddie Cantor, Fred Allen, Bob Hope and Bobby Clark.

Tony simply took the show in stride, presenting an easy-paced production with music and comedy carefully apportioned. Tony had this advantage—he had Milton Berle at his side and his guest roster included the Andrews Sisters, the top vocal group in the nation. Berle undoubtedly helped Tony to unbend and Berle relieved Tony of some of the emcee assignments which are a big chore.

The Comedy Hour, by becoming the top show in television, has frightened many top stars. Fred Allen failed to solve the CH complex and bowed out. Jerry Lester tried on the Comedy Hour hat and found it too small for his head. Cantor, Clark and Hope have tried to outdo themselves—to put on a show which would be recognized as the greatest show on television. But, a great artist knows it is better to underplay—rather than overplay—a role.

Tony underplayed his part and became the only performer, except Martin and Lewis, to solve the Comedy Hour complex.

CARMEN MIRANDA makes her first appearance as guest of Don McNeill on the TV Club at 10 Thursday night on WSB-TV. She will be joined on the guest roster by Ronald Reagan.

Those who saw "Streetcar Named Desire" at the Tower Theater several seasons ago, will find interest in the Starlight Theater presentation at 8 on WAGA-TV. Judith Evelyn, star of "Angel Street" and the road company of "Streetcar" will star in "Miss Duell," a story about a school teacher who is determined to produce a high school Romeo and Juliet despite an unsympathetic student body.

Televiewers will meet an Ohio prisoner who tells magazine stories to repay people he robbed on "Stranger Than Fiction" at 7 on WAGA-TV.

Other tips: Mandy Carson replaced Jack Haley on the Four Star Revue at 9:30—WSB-TV. Marilyn Ross joins John Conte during the Little Show at 7:30—WSB-TV. Nathan Milstein, concert violinist, makes his teevee debut as an actor in "Fiddling Fool" on Airflyt Theater at 10:30—WAGA-TV. Miss Liah will be featured on the Garry Moore show at 1:30—WAGA-TV.

GOV. GORDON BROWNING, of Tennessee, will be heard in a special address, "Our Heritage and Responsibility," at 1 p. m. on WSB-radio. He will be addressing the Southeastern Regional Convention of the American Bar Association at the Billmore.

Ronald Coleman stars in suspense drama, "A Vision of Death," at 9 on WAGA-radio.

Policeman Back In The Pink Again —Says He's The "Kilroy of Old"

HADACOL Relieves Lack of Energy When Due to a Lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Nicotin and Iron

It takes a good man, a man that's really up and at 'em, to help keep an eye on one of the world's largest office buildings. So when Jimmy Kilroy, 1133 Belden Ave., Chicago, Ill., found himself below par... in a sluggish rundown condition... he turned to today's great HADACOL. We'd heard how this wonderful formula corrected the real cause of such trouble when due to a lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Nicotin and Iron. As a result, he's back in shape again, headed with energy and enthusiasm.

Here's what Mr. Kilroy has to say: "A few lines to tell you the great things your HADACOL has done for me. As a prize fighter and now as a policeman assigned to one of the world's largest office buildings, I have always had to be in the best of shape. A month ago I found I was in a rundown condition, lacking energy, always tired and sluggish. And a young man one day said at one time, he was the same. Advised me to buy a bottle of HADACOL, which I did. After two bottles, started feeling like myself and from there on I got new energy. Have been working in the gym 1 hour daily and everyone tells me how great I look and act. It really is a great product and I will always keep taking it. I feel like the Kilroy of old."

Morehouse, Mo., was admitted to Grady Hospital with severe head injuries after a truck-auto collision at Fourteenth and Hemphill Aves. N. W. P. W. Parham and E. G. Cowan said Jones was struck by a car driven by Alonzo W. Roberts, 6666 Powers Ferry Rd. N. W. Roberts was booked for violating pedestrian rights.

In other mishaps, Hilda Juanita Perry, 18, of Bexley High School basketball player, suffered an injury to the left foot in a game at Roosevelt High School. Grady records showed. Marvin G. Pollett, six, of 827 Marietta St. N. W., was bitten in the face by a dog. Raymond Cornwell, nine, of 361 Lafayette Ave. N. W., suffered an injury to his side in a fall from his bicycle, while Donald E. Gann, two, of 2009 Glenwood Ave. S. E., was treated for facial lacerations after a tumble from his tricycle. James Earl Giles, 19, of 141 Memorial Dr. S. E., radio repairman, injured his left arm and left leg in a 12-foot fall from the roof of a building. Mrs. Delores Norman, 20, of 350 Washington St. S. W., said she developed food poisoning after eating pie and egg salad. Marie Dooley, five, of Route 2, Austell, was scalded about the face, neck and chest with hot coffee. Lavada Pritchett, two, of 300 Rawson St. S. W., swallowed a penny.

ranged unless what he termed the "violations" of the Italian treaty by the West—especially with reference to Trieste—was also examined. Therefore, he argued, the two subjects must be considered jointly on any agenda for a foreign ministers' council.

This, it may be pointed out, is not a new Soviet line. On May 4, 1950, during the meetings of the special deputies appointed by the ministers to discuss an Austrian state treaty, the USSR first produced this form of logic.

Gromyko commenced his presentation with a series of diatribes against the United States, Britain and France. He contended that Britain and the United States had transformed the Trieste harbor into a military and naval base. (This correspondent, who was last in that city less than four months ago, can testify that such an accusation is utterly absurd.)

The Soviet deputy then argued that it would be impossible for Moscow to avoid the conclusion that if the Western powers had turned Trieste into such a military place d'armes, they might do the same with Austria after a treaty for that nation was signed.

When questioned on his logic and reminded that such charges of violations of the Italian treaty (involving Trieste) would apply to Germany as well as Austria were they valid, he replied in the negative. He said that all four powers would be expected to fulfill their obligations under a German treaty.

Gromyko's presentation was rebutted several times by the Western deputies. Philip Jessup for the United States, commenced by briefly outlining the history of discussions on Austria's fate. He said that the foreign ministers first application relieves

There's just no debating an honest, sincere statement like that. Surely there is no need to be a burden to yourself, to your friends, or to your family, if you are suffering from such troubles due to a lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Nicotin and Iron. HADACOL supplies more than the minimum daily requirements of these elements plus helpful quantities of Phosphorus and Calcium. It really goes to work to build good red blood, better hemoglobin, (when Iron is needed) to make sure that the precious Vitamins and Minerals are used to every part of the body, to every body organ. HADACOL is quickly absorbed in your system because its important elements are already dissolved in a special liquid form that's easy to take.

themselves had left Paris in June, 1949, thinking they had at last resolved the chief obstacles blocking a treaty with Vienna.

Nevertheless, he said, the Soviet had consistently raised one point after another in the deputies' meetings at London, complicating the situation and deliberately frustrating a further advance by disagreeing with the definition of terms already agreed.

It was false logic, Jessup said, to connect two unrelated subjects such as a charge of violation of one treaty and a proposal to conclude another. The United States did not pursue such logic. In an area where settlement might be possible it was prepared to go ahead and try to seek an accord. Jessup then asked Gromyko why he was prepared to go ahead and introduce the subject of a German peace treaty on the foreign ministers' agenda under his laws of logic if at the same time he excluded an Austrian treaty on grounds that, were one compact allegedly violated, (that with Italy) another might be.

soldiers must be made by the Europeans.

Lodge's version would have differed only in psychology and not in substance, since he attempted no congressional restriction beyond a general senatorial warning that Europe was expected to provide most of the men.

Thus, there was little dispute on the heart of the matter—the assignment of troops unhindered by congressional "ceilings."

There was, however, in the day's decisive votes of the combined committees, a very close partisan division over important collateral issues. These of which the greatest was whether the House of Representatives, as well as the Senate, should participate in the policy, remain unresolved.

An effort led by Sen. Smith, Republican, New Jersey, to insist upon offering the House a parallel, by way of a concurrent resolution that would have to go to that body as well as the Senate, was defeated by 13 to 1.

Every Republican present, except one, stood with Smith, as did a Democrat, Sen. Byrd, Virginia. Connally and Russell drew in a Republican recruit, Sen. Tobey, New Hampshire, to compensate for the loss of Byrd.

Sen. Smith announced he would renew the effort when it is planned to complete action on a few remaining phrases of the Connally-Russell text.

He emphasized that he was not opposing the Connally-Russell Senate resolution as such and, indeed, intended to vote for it, as "the necessary proof of Eisenhower and to the Europeans that we mean business."

Nevertheless, he said, he would move just after that resolution had been cleared, to repeat the language of the whole thing in another and concurrent resolution to be sent to the House.

Connally, however, remained strongly opposed to bringing in the House at present.

"There will be no such division on the Senate floor," he asserted, "as has been indicated here in the committees. Many of those who voted Wednesday against proceeding with the Senate resolution alone will not in any case vote against it on the floor."

Some Republican informants privately supported this forecast, if only in part. Their present effort, they said, was to "bring the House into the picture" and should not be interpreted to mean that, if defeated, that they would necessarily vote to reject the troop project itself.

The position thus was one in which Connally could bring out his resolution Thursday by a very heavy majority, if he chose to concede a point to the Smith view. He appeared to have command of enough votes to get it out anyhow, though, lacking some conciliation, in perhaps, only a narrow way.

Connally has repeatedly objected to the whole concept of sending the issue to the House now on the stated ground that much time—perhaps a month or so—would be required.

He has made it plain that the administration is doing all in its power to have the troops-for-Europe enterprise an established fact before the prospective foreign ministers conference of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union.

Students Welcome Lattimore

BALTIMORE, March 7.—(P)—Owen Lattimore got a thunderous greeting from 2,000 high school boys Wednesday when he made a speech the City Council sought to block.

The expert on Far Eastern affairs took only passing notice of the heated controversy his appearance had provoked. He dwelt instead on the theme that the United States needs to find a single foreign policy that will work in both Europe and Asia.

Lattimore was one of the principal targets when Sen. McCarthy, Republican, Wisconsin, made his charges in Washington last year that Reds had infiltrated the State Department. Majority members of a special Senate investigating committee found the charges a fraud and a hoax.

The Baltimore City Council Monday night voted 13 to 6 a suggestion that the speech be canceled. The School Board declined to interfere.

Nazi General Ramke Surrenders in France

PARIS, March 7.—(P)—Gen. Hermann Ramke, Nazi parachute troop commander, who broke house arrest and disappeared last Jan. 18, surrendered himself Wednesday to French military authorities.

Ramke faces charges of war crimes in connection with actions by his troops during the defense of Brest in the last war.

After the war, Ramke was imprisoned, then placed on parole through the intervention of the International Red Cross. Police did not say where the general gave himself up. He was taken to a military detention camp.

Testimony of Applicant, Owner in Liquor License Probe

Zoning Chairman Denies Pressure or Bribe Offers

The following testimony is printed verbatim as it was introduced before the January-February Grand Jury. The entire testimony, consisting of more than 250 pages, is being published in installments in The Constitution at the request of the Grand Jury. It has been requested that the testimony be printed in order that it will be "understood as a whole."

The following installment is part of the sworn testimony attached to the special presentments:

Testimony of Joseph Greenfield, chairman of the Fulton County Zoning Commission, Jan. 16, 1951, 1:45 p. m.:

Grand Jury Foreman Claude Mason: We are attempting to serve our county by taking an accumulation of rumors of graft and corruption that has come up over the years and some of us think there is something to them and if there is to any of them, we want to find the guilty and punish them. We think perhaps some of them are not guilty and if all of them are not guilty, we would like to clear the air and obtain information has come to us about experiences you have had. Have you ever been in Jack Towns' office?

Mr. Greenfield: I have been in Jack's office one time. Tom Camp and I went by to talk to him about this Campbellton Road deal. Jack wanted to zone a piece of property for a drive-in theater and I said we weren't going to do it. We made it stick with the other County Commissioners.

Mr. Webb: Did he make any proposition to you—suggest any improper thing?

Mr. Greenfield: Since I have been doing public work, I have never had anybody ever suggest that.

Mr. Webb: No one has ever offered you money either directly or indirectly or made any proposition to you?

Mr. Greenfield: No.

Mr. Mason: You mean nobody has ever offered you a quart of whiskey?

Mr. Greenfield: Oh, yes.

Mr. Mason: Well, that is what we want to know.

Mr. Greenfield: A man came in there and brought Jack some whiskey. He told me and I gave him a quart if we would like to have one. I told him no.

Mr. Webb: He didn't tell you it was a question of a nice commission if it passed?

Mr. Greenfield: No.

Mr. Webb: We are trying to get to the bottom of this and if there is any truth to it, we want to know the why and wherefore.

Mr. Greenfield: We would make our recommendations and we always had at least three Commissioners to back us up on them. I think when we zone a piece of property, it can put anything on it, and we don't like to zone too much at a time because it throws the whole thing wide open. He said he actually needed 150 feet for his station, but wanted some longer runways. We zoned about 150 feet. Before this happened he had gone ahead and graded and put the tanks in. His tanks were not on the land zoned. Fred Wilson and the crowd at Blair Village were against him because they wanted a monopoly.

Mr. Greenfield: His name was Blalock. He was in the wrong because he went ahead too quick. He came in there and asked for about 400 feet, but we zoned for 150 feet. When we zone a piece of property, they can put anything on it, and we don't like to zone too much at a time because it throws the whole thing wide open. He said he actually needed 150 feet for his station, but wanted some longer runways. We zoned about 150 feet. Before this happened he had gone ahead and graded and put the tanks in. His tanks were not on the land zoned. Fred Wilson and the crowd at Blair Village were against him because they wanted a monopoly.

Mr. Mason: How are you appointed to serve on the Planning Commission?

Mr. Greenfield: We are appointed by the County Commissioners. I was appointed about five years ago. We are paid $10 a day now for days we serve, that is, days we have Board meetings. We didn't used to be paid at all. I have to travel around every morning going out and inspecting property.

Mr. Webb: I understand that you were told that if this thing on Campbellton Road was passed there would be a nice commission in it for you. We wouldn't have called you down here for a quart of whiskey, whether you accepted it or not. I had very definite information that you were told that if this project could go through you could get a nice commission.

Mr. Greenfield: The Campbellton Road thing didn't go through. What would happen was this. While I was out, Allen would send the stuff up to them. He wouldn't go to the Commissioners beforehand and tell them about it and then he would get them to back him up. He got reversed and it hurt his feelings. He did not recognize he was dealing with a political situation and just wanted to handle it like a school teacher.

Non-Conforming Use

Mr. Webb: What about the business out on Jim Aldridge's land?

Mr. Greenfield: It operates under what we call a non-conforming use. In 1946 or 1947 they put in what they call a non-conforming use. He can't enlarge it, but he can continue it like it is under the zoning law. When Fulton County was zoned in 1943, there were a number of plants and things like that scattered through the area. If they are destroyed in any way, the land would revert to residential.

Mr. Webb: That particular land is there a number of little stores and filling stations in residential areas like that.

Mr. Webb: Have you ever had any type of pressure put on you by the County Commissioners to zone any particular piece of property?

Mr. Greenfield: No, I have not. I always discuss the zoning of the property with some of the Commissioners before I send it up there. I can explain it to them. That way I am not reversed as Dr. Albert was when he sent the stuff up cold.

Mr. Webb: Thank you for coming.

Mr. Greenfield: I am sorry I could not be of more help.

Testimony of H. P. Leonard, member of November-December Grand Jury, Jan. 16, 1951, 2:15 p. m.:

Mr. Mason: ... We are trying to find out how far your Grand Jury went in the way of investigation. What they found out.

Mr. Leonard: You are going to run up against stone walls, I am afraid. We didn't accomplish too much. What we did first.

Mr. Webb: When the Committee was appointed, we had a conference in your office, Mr. Webb. You seemed to be in accord with the idea that there might be some basis for all these rumors. It indicated that while there was a fixed procedure starting with the filing of an application, there seemed to be an indication that the approach was from the top side down, rather than from the bottom. It seemed that it had to be carried to the top before the mechanics at the bottom operated easily. We went up and talked to Judge Shaw. We did not interview anybody under oath. If you run into a brick wall I would suggest you possibly might get some leads from Judge Shaw.

Political Interference

Mr. Webb: Did you make your presentment and statement about political interference from above from your talk with me?

Mr. Leonard: No, not entirely. There is one thing I know from my own experience. It involves some people close to me out at the market. The source of information would be revealed if your investigation was to start with that particular man. I know for a fact that depending upon the election of a certain Commissioner, the man knew he was going to have a liquor license. The Commission was elected and the liquor store is out by the airport. That is one thing that should be investigated. Somewhere in the records of that liquor store you are going to find a distribution of profits. I don't know the name of the store but can find out.

Mr. Mason: If you can get any more information we would like to have it.

Mr. Leonard: Mr. McGill wrote the presentment and perhaps the wording was a little strong. The use of the word evidence... depending upon what you mean by evidence. We talked to the city and county authorities. Mr. Brandes (Nov-Dec. Jury member), talked to the city and reported to me that he did. I am satisfied that he did. Mr. Donaldson (Nov-Dec. Jury member), was supposed to have talked to the county. Mr. Donaldson did not come to the meeting. Mr. Brandes reported his conversation with the city authorities. It seemed to be his opinion that when the investigation was made nobody knew exactly what was going to happen to it. I know to my own knowledge where a man knew months ahead he was going to have a liquor license. It would be rather hard to approach it from that particular angle, however, if you can find something in the records.

Continuous Probe

Mr. Webb: I think the foreman's plan is to have practically every liquor store owner down here before we are through. We do not intend that the guilty shall go unpunished. Your Grand Jury agreed they didn't have time to continue the investigation. We are working overtime on this thing and I don't think we have entirely hit a blank wall.

Mr. Leonard: Can the Grand Jury call for records of the distribution of profits of a liquor store?

Mr. Webb: We can call for them, but they cannot be used against them in court. A man is not compelled to give evidence against himself.

A man who takes a bribe...

Mr. Webb: ... has got sense enough to do it in the presence of no one else except the man who gives it. There are such tremendous amounts of money involved that probably the bulk of the transactions are cash.

What you had in mind was that we would continue the investigation—that is, that each Grand Jury would continue it.

Mr. Leonard: We thought possibly we would put them on notice that we were after them to the point where it would stop some of this type of thing.

Whenever we had a meeting there was no evidence taken, I was not present at any interview, but I understood both the county and city were talked to.

Mr. Mason: The county men made it very definite they had not been talked to.

Testimony of Mr. Lee Myers, Jan. 16, 1951, 2:35 p. m.:

Solicitor General Paul Webb: You are Lee Myers? You own the Murphy Avenue liquor store? Where are you from, Mr. Myers?

Mr. Myers: Louisville, Kentucky. I came to Atlanta a little over 13 years ago. Yes, I am the owner of the store on Murphy Avenue.

Mr. Webb: What business were you in before the liquor business?

Mr. Myers: Real estate business.

Later on I went into the liquor business. I also have some vending machines (weighing scales). I also have the Circle Liquor Store, 438 Edgewood Avenue, the Byrd Liquor Store, 608 McDaniel, S.W., and the Arrow Liquor Store, 818 Hunter St., S.W.

Before I went into the Army I owned five liquor stores. I now own four. Before I bought the one on Murphy Avenue, I owned three stores. I made arrangements with the bookkeeper and the manager of the store to share in the profits of the store. Nobody else owns any part of any of the stores. Recently the bookkeeper paid my salary. He was on a five percent share profit basis. His name was Rennie Morrell. I read in the paper that Mr. Levin had secured a county license and didn't get a state license and I called him and asked him about it. That is when I became interested in the Murphy Avenue Store. I have known Mr. Levin 13 years. I paid Mr. Levin for the license. I called him and asked him what he was going to do with the license. He never worked for me. He had never been associated with me in the business. I had met him at retail liquor dealers' meetings. I never had applied for a license since 1938. I have applied for transfers of licenses. I applied for a transfer for the store on Murphy Avenue from Levin to me. I have a liquor store I am ready to sell now on Edgewood Avenue. I can make a living out of it. I don't think I lose anything on the store on Edgewood except my time and the operators' time.

Mr. Webb: How is it that some people have so many liquor licenses and some people are anxious to get them and can't get them?

Mr. Myers: My family has been in the liquor business since 1889 in Louisville. I have not applied for a license since I first came to the city. At that time nobody would make money or not.

Mr. Webb: Why is it whenever a states goes wet, you liquor fellows all flock to it, if there is no money to be made?

Mr. Myers: Let me put it this way. I am a business man of integrity and probity, and if money can be made honorably in the liquor business, I am going into such business.

Mr. Webb: Is there much hazard in it?

Mr. Myers: There is quite a bit of hazard connected with it because of the legal restriction surrounding it, and things like that. A county can go dry. A state can go dry.

Mr. Webb: You never would have become a citizen of Georgia unless Georgia had legalized whiskey.

Mr. Myers: You said that, Mr. Webb.

Mr. Webb: You have been here 13 years and came here for the purpose of going into the liquor business and still you say it is hazardous.

Mr. Myers: It is a hazardous business. I have invested a lot of money in the real estate business. I think I came to Atlanta in November, 1937. I went back to Louisville and came back again in February, 1943.

Mr. Mason: Didn't you tell one County Commissioner that Mr. Levin was still getting 5 percent of the gross out of the Murphy Avenue store?

Mr. Myers: No, sir.

Mr. Webb: Have you ever been in Mr. Tom Camp's office? Have you ever talked to him about the store?

Mr. Myers: I don't remember. I might have discussed a number of things with him. I know I didn't ask him to vote to transfer the license.

Mr. Webb: Have you ever told anyone that Mr. Levin got five percent of the gross from that store?

Mr. Myers: No.

Mr. Webb: What is the gross of the Murphy Avenue store?

Mr. Myers: $3,000 a week. I have gotten the first month's operation figures. This doesn't include depreciation, however. I never told anyone how much I got.

Mr. Webb: What did you pay Mr. Levin for the license?

Mr. Myers: I paid him $1,047.

Mr. Webb: That is what he asked for. The way I understand it, you put up $50 for the investigation and pay $1,000 for the license. I can tell you about the transfer of a license. You merely fill out an application and leave it with Ed Aiken and it is then acted on. That is all I know about it. An attorney in the same office with Tom Camp was handling some legal matters for me. I didn't have the attorney handle the license for me. I went to Tom Camp's office the day before Christmas to take my lawyer a token gift. His name was Boyd.

Mr. Webb: I can't understand why a man would want to sell a license for $1,000 when he could get more for it. It is worth perhaps $5,000 up I could sell it for that. When I thought it he didn't have anything but the county license. The building was already there. He didn't have any signs or fixtures in there.

Mr. Webb: Is Mr. Levin still in the liquor business?

Mr. Myers: I have not run into him like I run into people in the business since I have gone into two more businesses and more or less let the liquor business be run by my manager.

Mr. Webb: Where did you stay when you first came to Atlanta?

Mr. Myers: What was the name of this place "A Room and a Bath for a Dollar and a Half"? The Hampton. Then I moved to the Henry Grady and then to the Billmore. Now I have a house.

Mr. Webb: I don't know any politicians. I am a business man of integrity and probity. The liquor business is a free enterprise.

Mr. Webb: There are 159 licenses and nobody else can get in. I don't call that free enterprise.

Mr. Myers: My story runs straight down the line with the law.

Mr. Webb: I think I could go to any one of your stores and buy liquor in violation of the law.

Mr. Myers: I don't think so.

Mr. Webb: Do you write down the names and addresses of people?

Mr. Myers: No, you have me there.

Mr. Webb: Actually I think you haven't sold any liquor under the law except maybe what has been sold on Murphy Avenue. I don't think you have resident requirements when you obtained licenses at the other stores. I intend to investigate it.

Mr. Myers: I sold one license for $3,000 and another for $9,000 when I went in the Army.

Testimony of "Cracker" Nelson, Jan. 16, 1951, 2:30 p. m.:

Tells of Threats

Mr. Mason: ... We know you tried to get into the liquor racket. There have been enough rumors to convince us there is something to them. The previous Grand Jury got to it late and started the investigation. We want to get to the bottom of it and for that reason are trying to talk to some people who know some facts. We would like any information you could possibly give us to help in this investigation. Any of our officials that are not guilty certainly should be relieved of any stigma that might have been attached to them by the previous Grand Jury presentment—referring to pressure being brought from higher up. Every city official and every county official is looked at with the possibility that he might be connected with it. If you can give us any information, we would appreciate it.

Mr. Nelson: ... It is the third time I have been down here. I am glad to answer any questions. The only thing I know is that you come down here and answer any questions. Five minutes later the Commissioners have it and you are called up on the phone and threatened. I gave up the idea of a liquor store. I went to the Supreme Court and found out it is a privilege and is up to the decision of the Commissioners and they can do as they see fit. If you gentlemen want to ask me anything, I will answer.

Mr. Webb: How many times did you apply for a liquor license?

Mr. Nelson: I applied for a license three times. The first time was out on Campbellton Road close to the orphan's home. That was three and one-half or four years ago. It was turned down. I applied a second time for the same license and was turned down. Said it was too close to the orphan's home. I then filed a suit, mandamus against the Commissioners. When I filed suit I had a meeting with Commissioner Doyal, Hailey and Tom Camp. They told me to apply at another location and they would give me a license. I immediately applied at 2410 Stewart Avenue. I was turned down again. Judge Carpenter was up there. He had put in for a couple of licenses in his brother's name. They turned him down too. We were all upstairs at the hearing. Judge Carpenter was there and came outside and he was mad and said he would bring this thing before the Supreme Court. Neal Ellis came out and told us to withdraw our applications.

Offered $10,000

Shorty Doyal worked for me during the war. He promised to get me a liquor license. Told me to go see Neal Ellis. Said he had to OK the license. There never was no price made. I never have been approached about paying for the license. It was offered, $10,000 by John Stone, who owns John Stone's garage. He called me off to the side and said he didn't want me to get mad with him, but if I would drop the suit he would get the money for me tomorrow.

Mr. Webb: Have you heard that 10 or 12 people own all the liquor stores in Atlanta. I don't know if it is true or not, but if you would take away the licenses of anybody with a criminal record or anybody who got them crookedly, you would have 20 percent of the licenses left.

Mr. Nelson: If you know of somebody who is taking graft, we would like to know of it.

Mr. Nelson: I am scared that five minutes after I leave this room Neal Ellis will know of it.

Mr. Webb: You are excused.

Testimony of Mr. Gordon Donaldson, Jan. 17, 1951, 4:00 p. m.:

Mr. Mason: You were on this committee on the last Grand Jury?

Mr. Donaldson: Yes, I understood some of the other members of the committee were going to be down here. I am not too familiar with them.

Mr. Webb: Mr. Leonard was down here yesterday and we called Mr. Brandes, but he had to go out of town. He will be by if he gets back in time tonight.

Mr. Mason: What we want to know is if you interviewed any of the men with the city or county actually engaged in inspecting these liquor licenses.

Mr. Donaldson: No, I did not.

Mr. Webb: You saw the report?

Mr. Donaldson: Yes.

Mr. Webb: You were present when the committee made its report?

Mr. Donaldson: Yes.

Has No Evidence

Mr. Webb: Do you know on what evidence they based their sentence stating that they had been handicapped by political interference from higher up?

Mr. Donaldson: We never got any proof in the investigation. We took up one or two items we never could get anything definite. We knew one man would buy a piece of property and not get a license and then another man would buy a piece adjacent to it and get a license. I agree that it was an use of the word "evidence" was unhappy one. We didn't have any evidence as far as I know. There actually wasn't any evidence presented you could pin down or bring to any court that would be of any value but I don't think I was sick at the time and missed part of the meetings.

Mr. Webb: Weren't you supposed to talk to the city or county officials?

Mr. Donaldson: I didn't know I was supposed to talk to either one. I might have been assigned to it, but I was sick and I suppose when I didn't report at the meeting, I didn't get the assignment.

Mr. Webb: Thank you for something.

Tomorrow, more testimony will be presented as it appears in the sworn testimony of the special presentment.

Doyal Answers Grand Jury Charges, Alleges 'Smear' Attempt by Newspapers

The following remarks were made by R. L. (Shorty) Doyal, Fulton County Commissioner, as he asked the County Commission to rescind its investigation of the Fulton Grand Jury's charges of fraudulent practices in liquor store licensing.

Mr. Chairman and members of the board:

The January-February, 1951, Grand Jury of Fulton County, whose presentments were inspired by The Atlanta Journal, have made certain charges and insinuations against me and other members of the County Commission.

Charges and insinuations (except one) are not contained in the general presentments of the Grand Jury which are published at the expense of the County, but are contained in a special presentment which was expressly ordered by the Superior Court of Fulton County not to be published at the expense of Fulton County. Nevertheless The Atlanta Journal at its own expense published these special presentments in its Friday evening edition of March 2, 1951, and its Saturday morning edition of March 3, 1951.

Publishes Evidence

Commencing with its morning edition of March 5, 1951, it has commenced the publication of what it says was the evidence taken before the Grand Jury. I have not as yet had access to the transcript which purports to set out my own testimony, but I am informed by others who have seen the transcripts of their testimony that there are many errors in them. You will notice that the transcript from my testimony published in the Monday morning, March 5, 1951, edition of The Constitution was edited so as to leave out part and to insert part. The effect of this editing was to leave the impression that I had a large amount of insurance on liquor stores. I will answer that insinuation in a few minutes, but first I wish to call to your attention the fact that The Atlanta Journal has already given to the publication of these scurrilous and unfounded charges space which an advertiser would have to pay between $5,000 and $10,000 and will no doubt continue if it costs them $50,000.

It is engaged in a campaign of vilification which it claims will destroy public confidence in the Fulton County government, and incidentally, in a very special sense, destroy me. It has succeeded in concealing its motives and purposes because it has a monopoly in this locality of the newspaper, and it is using this monopoly to the public. Its methods include publication of half truths as well as concealment of truths. Intimidation and embarrassment with the consequent grief to oneself and to one's family are its weapons. It is quite aware of the fact that the person attacked in its columns has no adequate medium of reply.

The January-February Grand Jury was unduly incited by The Atlanta Journal. It used its editorial columns to make insinuations and to make a smear campaign against us Commissioners and immediately we were called before the Grand Jury.

'Timber Deal'

After we had given our sworn testimony concerning what The Atlanta Journal has always misrepresented as the "timber deal," the Grand Jury foreman had a conference with Mr. Ralph McGill and returned to the Grand Jury with the message that three of us Commissioners must be indicted because the papers are demanding it.

I cannot complete my remarks without answering the insinuations and innuendoes contained in the Grand Jury presentments as magnified by the newspaper articles. One of the headings in the general presentments had to do with "Sale of Timber by County Commissioners." I positively state that at the time the bid of Mr. Malcolm was made and the contract accepted by the County Commissioners there was no other bid or letter in the possession or offices of the County Commissioners which was known to me containing any higher figure or bid.

The papers have constantly misrepresented that there was such a higher bid and that we accepted Malcolm's bid with knowledge that there was such a higher bid. Such statement is untrue. Later we were advised by the County Attorney that we could rescind the contract because it was not recorded on the minutes of the County Commissioners. Acting on this advice, we voted to rescind it. I am informed by the County Attorney and I myself state that there has been no delivery of title whatsoever to Malcolm by any action we have taken since we voted to rescind the contract, and I further assure you that there has been no meeting of the minds to make a new contract with Malcolm since we voted to rescind the contract.

I want it expressly understood that it is my intention and direction that the County Legal Department continue with the present litigation to final judgment of the court that Malcolm has not bought this timber.

There is only one specific instance in the special presentments which make any insinuation against me, and that is with respect to the testimony of Don Paschal, a young man who used to play football on the Boys' High team of 1941, which I coached, and who became disgruntled with me because I voted against his liquor license. This is the only instance in my many years of coaching where one of my boys has tried to hurt me. The Grand Jury published in its special presentment a statement that I told him, "Don, you are a grown man now and business is business."

ASKS LIQUOR PROBE

The Grand Jury does not purport to say what this statement means, but by its context it purports to make it mean that I was suggesting to Paschal that I could get a liquor license if he paid me to get it. I state to you that I did not make such a statement and I swore under oath to the Grand Jury that I did not make such a statement. The Grand Jury did not publish my denial. Why? You must remember that the Foreman of the Grand Jury visited with Ralph McGill.

Libel Deposition

During the tenure of the January-February Grand Jury, The Atlanta Journal Company took my depositions in my libel case. They gave me a notice to produce all of the records in my insurance business, and I brought them every one. I did not see the relevancy to The Journal going into my business books when I was charged with libel. I explained that one of these accounts was a disability coverage which my son, Buck, and his friend, Jim Still, worked hard on and wrote for employees of the County Works Department. I testified that the income from this policy was $3 a month to Buck, $6 a month to Jim Still, and $3 a month to me.

I also testified that this coverage has been so good for the employees of this department that I have been able to withdraw the policy as it has paid out more to the employees than it has received in premiums. I testified I had insured with a few friends who sold to the County. I testified that I had nothing to do with their sales to the County, because the sales were made to the County by the lowest bidder.

However, including all of the people who dealt with the County and the people who worked with the County

Liquor Store Application Turned Down

County commissioners, who have been assailed by the grand jury in connection with the granting of liquor licenses, turned down one application Wednesday and deferred action on another.

One application, from J. P. McCleskey, West Andrews Drive, was voted down by Comms. Jack Towns, Jim Aldredge and I. Gloer. Hailey on the ground the proposed store would be only 308 feet from a church. Coms. R. L. (Sherry) Doyal and Tom Camp voted in favor of granting the license.

The second application, from Watson B. Jackson, of 2608 Stewart Ave., S. W., was postponed to get information on whether he contemplated employing other workers.

J. L. Chambers Contracting Co., low bidder, was awarded a $77,894.70 contract for construction of sewers.

The board approved recommendations of the Fulton Zoning Commission on a score of applications for rezoning, including a widely debated application from Mrs. Lillian B. Chastain to rezone property on Lake Forrest Rd. The zoning commission granted Mrs. Chastain's request to rezone the property from R-1 to R-1a, changing the required lot size from 87,000 square feet to 43,000 square feet.

Commissioners denied an application from Sheriff A. B. Foster for an increase of $10 in automobile expenses allotments for 12 deputies. . . . Granted, subject to approval of the county attorney and public works director, request of Horace Anderson, of Lakeland Hills, that the county furnish 72 feet of pipe for a stream under Woodbury Drive. . . . Approved a beer license for Mrs. Elizabeth M. Baker, 1527 Northside Drive. . . . Approved for payment approximately $100 advertising bills incurred by the county legislative delegation but went on record as refusing to pay future bills unless they were approved in advance and agreed to meet with the Metropolitan Planning Commission at 11 a. m. Friday.

WASHINGTON—Wilkes County's quota in the Red Cross Drive which will begin on March 8, is $2,500, which is much in excess of former goals in these campaigns. Every one is confident that the required amount will be oversubscribed.

Crime Probers Vote To Cite Carroll In Test of TV Testimony Refusal

WASHINGTON, March 7—(AP)—The Senate Crime Committee voted Wednesday to cite James J. Carroll, nationally known betting commissioner, for contempt of Congress to test whether a witness can be forced to testify before television cameras.

J. J. Carroll

Carroll refused to answer the committee's questions at a hearing in St. Louis last month on the ground that the television cameras recording his testimony invaded his constitutional right of privacy.

He said he was willing to testify, but told the committee at a stormy session that the televising of his appearance outraged his "sense of propriety."

Chairman Kefauver, Democrat, Tennessee, told reporters after a closed meeting of the Crime Investigating Committee that the members had voted to "make a test case" of Carroll's action and had recommended to the Senate that he be cited for contempt of Congress.

Move To Keep Probe Free of Dry Question

Police Committee Chairman Ed Gilliam Wednesday night issued a statement aimed at discouraging an discussion of changes in state liquor laws at a public hearing Thursday night into Fulton Grand Jury charges of liquor irregularities.

Gilliam's statement came on the heels of an announcement by prohibitionists that they would be present at the hearing.

"The police committee hearing will be limited to an investigation of any city liquor licenses now existing," Gilliam said, "and to hearing from any persons who may feel that they have been unjustly denied a license or who can give any testimony under oath as to any liquor license."

"We sincerely hope that the time of the committee will not be taken up in discussions of changes in the state law over which the committee has no control and about which the committee is not the proper forum for discussion. We ask the co-operation of the public in seeing to it that the committee is allowed to make a fair and honest investigation as rapidly as possible."

The hearing will begin at 7:30 p. m. at the Police Station.

Previously, Dr. Norman Lovin, Executive Secretary of the Georgia Temperance League, who said he will appear as an observer, announced that a meeting of the Administrative Committee of his organization was set for 3 p. m. Friday.

Bishop Arthur J. Moore is Chairman of the league's administrative group, and Dr. Louis D. Newton is Vice Chairman. Included among other members are: Dr. J. R. McCain, President of Agnes Scott College, and Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, honorary president of the State WCTU.

"The time for investigations is passed," Lovin added. "It is now time to act. It is no time to investigate while a house burns."

Dr. Lovin said he is speaking solely as an individual until after the administrative group meets, but said he expects definite action at that time.

Mrs. Russell called on "every Christian woman to go to the meeting (of the Police Committee) and demand a cleanup."

She emphasized that the group stands four-square for prohibition.

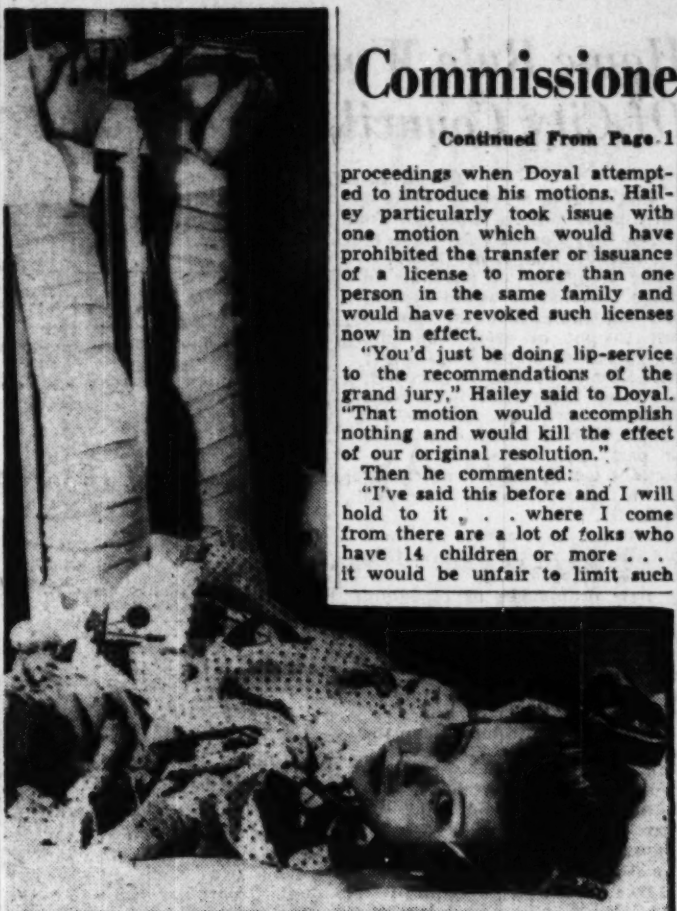

Peas Springing Out Of Wall Plaster

ST. LOUIS, March 7—(U.P.). Peas are popping out of the plaster in Theodore Koch's new home.

There's no mystery about it. Last Halloween prankish neighborhood children dumped peas in the plaster when workmen were putting the finishing touches on the house.

Shortly after the Kochs moved in last November, the peas began sprouting and popping out in marble-sized bumps on the wall.

That's the way it's been ever since. Whenever the Kochs turn the heat on, the peas start popping.

Commissioners Hold Heated Session

proceedings when Doyal attempted to introduce his motions. Hailey particularly took issue with one motion which would have prohibited the transfer or issuance of a license to more than one person in the same family and would have revoked such licenses now in effect.

"You'd just be doing lip-service to the recommendations of the grand jury," Hailey said to Doyal. "That motion would accomplish nothing and would kill the effect of our original resolution."

Then he commented: "I've said this before and I will hold to it . . . where I come from there are a lot of folks who have 14 children or more . . . it would be unfair to limit such folks to only one license . . . and our ultimate statements concerning them."

In the Doyal statement, which is printed in full elsewhere in this newspaper, he made reference to the "timber deal" which will come before Judge Walter C. Hendrix for a hearing Monday morning at 9:30 a. m., 30 minutes before the first meeting of the newly organized liquor investigation committee.

Doyal's remarks proclaimed innocence in the entire transaction of a contract, to low-bidding James T. Malcolm awarding timber-cutting rights on a 2,500-acre tract of county land near Adamsville. Doyal claimed particularly that he and the rest of the Commission had no knowledge that, at the time they awarded the contract, there were two other bids submitted which would have netted the county some $25,000 more than would have Malcolm's.

The other commissioners were silent as Doyal made his speech. They made no other comments or references to the Doyal-labeled "timber deal."

Following the hour-long liquor license discussion, the Commission considered regular business. First on the order was an application for a liquor license, which was bitterly opposed by residents in the proposed store area.

Commissioner Clerk Frank Fling read the license application and a recommendation by license inspector Ed Aiken and Fulton Chief of Police Neal Ellis that the license not be approved.

Also considered in the meeting were several new rezoning applications which were read and then discussed by persons in the commission room. They were all considered later at an executive meeting of the Board.

Claude C. Mason, Jr., foreman of the investigating jury which released the revealing presentation, said following the meeting:

"This assertion is entirely false. The grand jury of January-February investigated the liquor industry because of evidence turned over to me from the previous grand jury. There was no pressure put on the grand jury by any newspaperman. Mr. Doyal made those remarks to us at the time we interrogated him and we made it quite clear to him at that time that the investigation was being waged as part of our duty as a grand jury."

Mason then added: "In the light of what our jury uncovered in this investigation it would have been highly to the newspapers' credit if they had suggested a liquor investigation and they would have been due congratulations were they in any way connected with the queries we made of the Board."

Commissioner Clerk Frank Fling read the license application and a recommendation by license inspector Ed Aiken and Fulton Chief of Police Neal Ellis that the license not be approved.

Also considered in the meeting were several new rezoning applications which were read and then discussed by persons in the commission room. They were all considered later at an executive meeting of the Board.

Claude C. Mason, Jr., foreman of the investigating jury which released the revealing presentation, said following the meeting:

"This assertion is entirely false. The grand jury of January-February investigated the liquor industry because of evidence turned over to me from the previous grand jury. There was no pressure put on the grand jury by any newspaperman. Mr. Doyal made those remarks to us at the time we interrogated him and we made it quite clear to him at that time that the investigation was being waged as part of our duty as a grand jury."

Mason then added: "In the light of what our jury uncovered in this investigation it would have been highly to the newspapers' credit if they had suggested a liquor investigation and they would have been due congratulations were they in any way connected with the queries we made of the Board."

UN Studies Appeal for More Aid

MacArthur Needs Men and Supplies

By A. M. ROSENTHAL

LAKE SUCCESS, March 7.—The United Nations Sanctions Committee will consider a new appeal to members of the world organization to muster more men and supplies for Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Army in Korea.

Twelve members of the committee will meet in closed session here Thursday to get to work on their job of planning possible punitive measures against Communist China. Ernest A. Gross, U. S. representative, said that question of sending more aid to the UN Army would "doubtless" come up soon.

Within a few days, Gross added, the U. S. would present to the committee some of its own ideas for steps that could be taken against Peiping. Advance reports have been that the U. S. has been talking to other delegations about a trade embargo on war materials, and an end to new diplomatic recognitions of Peiping.

The plan to consider new efforts to increase contributions of UN members to the international army in Korea, Gross declared, was made before Gen. MacArthur's warning Wednesday of an indefinite stalemate.

So far, 13 members of the UN

Home Rule Would Up Power Of City Council, Gowen Says

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Challenging a recent ruling by Atlanta City Atty. Jack Savage, Rep. Charlie Gowen, of Glynn County, declared Wednesday that the Atlanta City Council will have much broader power under a Home Rule Charter than it has today.

"The frequency of elections to change the charter would depend upon the limitation the people want to put on their council," Gowen, author of the long-sought Home Rule Law, said. Apparently, the Fulton Legislators have been unwilling to trust the Atlanta City Council with a broad charter in the past, but have put in restrictions which make it necessary for the charter to be amended constantly.

Atlanta can adopt a Home Rule Charter which will give City Council wide latitude in enacting new ordinances or repealing present ones, without necessity of holding elections on such moves, Gowen pointed out. There should be no election on any matter that could be handled by ordinance, he added.

"Atlanta could come under the Home Rule Law and City Council could run its own affairs to the extent to which the people are willing to trust the Council," the solon asserted.

Savage had ruled that the Home Rule Act would make City Council less effective in governing Atlanta. He contended the act would merely transfer the power of amending the city charter from the State Legislature to the people voting in general election. He said this would mean the amending of the charter by the people every four years (in city general elections) instead of annually or biennially when the Legislature meets.

Savage's ruling caused Councilman John White to delay asking for a special election to adopt a Home Rule Charter.

Gowen said the people could vote more frequently than in the city general election, if they desired. Charter amendments elections could be voted on in special elections held simultaneously (to avoid expense) with state or county or other elections within the city. Atlanta votes three times within a four-year period.

Only restriction on the powers of the cities under the new Home Rule Act are that they not pass acts in conflict with the State Constitution, the state general law, or their own new city charters. Only Constitutional restriction is against debt. General law prevents councilmen from holding other municipal offices, prevents them from voting on matters in which they have a private interest, and prevents councilmen from being active election managers. City charters vary, with some giving their councils broad powers and some not.

Says Columbus Woman Drowned

BRADENTON, Fla., March 7.—(P)—Mrs. Nellie Burgess, whose body was washed ashore near here Monday, died of drowning, State Attorney W. M. Smiley said Wednesday.

Smiley reported he was continuing to hold her uncle, D. W. Smith, of Palmetto, who was with the 31-year-old Columbus, Ga., woman at the beach Sunday.

The body had several bruises including one on the temple, but an autopsy showed they were not severe enough in themselves to cause death, Smiley said.

"I can't explain the blows or what part they played in her death," he added.

Kidd Suggests Group Probe Patient Death

MILLEDGEVILLE, March 7.—Baldwin County Rep. Culver Kidd said Wednesday a legislative committee on the State Hospital here probably would "look into" the death of a mental patient in which three attendants are charged with murder.

The committee, Kidd said, will hold a meeting in Milledgeville next week.

A bond hearing for the accused attendants has been set for March 15 in Baldwin County Superior Court.

The warrants charging C. W. Beckum, Alton Lingould and Arthur Huff with murder in the strangulation death of Lloyd Hooks, 23, of Millen, were sworn out by Hospital Superintendent T. G. Peacock.

The three attendants have denied a charge they forced Hooks to swallow a handkerchief which jammed in his throat causing strangulation.

Dance at Brenau

GAINESVILLE — Brenau College's annual Cotillion dance will be held at the Gainesville Civic Building Saturday. Features of the evening will be the Cotillion Club lead-out, with club members and their dates being introduced. Members named to the group for the coming year will also be announced at that time. The club, with a limited membership of 19, is headed by Miss Lou Langston, of Goldsboro, N. C.

Purcell Child Now Has Sight In Both Eyes

Carolyn Purcell, the 4-year-old Alpharetta child, who once was given a blindness-or-death verdict, and who was believed to be gradually losing her vision to cancer, can now see from both eyes.

That's what Fred Cannon, chairman of the Shrine Mounted Patrol Charities Committee, advised other members of the committee, who have financed Carolyn's treatment, Wednesday.

Cannon said that an Atlanta eye specialist found "the inflammation completely healed in both eyes."

"I asked him if he thought the inflammation would return when the treatment is stopped. He said he did not think so," Cannon reported. Carolyn and her parents have been guests on Cannon's DeKalb County farm since her release from a private hospital several weeks ago.

$6,000,000 School Issue Given Okay

The University Building Authority Wednesday approved issuance of $6,000,000 in revenue certificates to finance buildings at three institutions in the State University System.

Proposed buildings include a $1,780,000 library at Georgia Tech. The Authority also gave State Auditor E. E. Thrasher and Director Hughes Spalding permission to advertise for bids.

The $6,000,000 authorized Wednesday sent total funds authorized for University System buildings to $12,000,000. Another $6,000,000 program is under way.

Other proposed buildings besides the Tech library are: University of Georgia—dormitory for men, $1,189,285; women's dormitory, $1,378,960; Georgia Teachers' College, Statesboro—men's dormitory, $385,000; Fort Valley State College—men's dormitory, $400,000.

Members of the Authority are Thrasher, Spalding, Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook and Dr. George Sparks, President of the University's Atlanta Division.

Manley 4th Exhibition Golfer Here

Hobart Manley, Jr., young Savannah amateur who recently captured two big Florida tournaments, will be the fourth member of the all-star foursome which will play a charity exhibition match at North Fulton golf course Sunday, April 1.

Charlie Johnson, athletic chairman of Buckhead Lodge of Elks, said Hobart was contacted Wednesday and readily agreed to play in the exhibition, proceeds of which will go to Aldmore Crippled Children Hospital.

The Elks had previously secured the services of Professional Slammin' Sam Sneed of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., National Amateur Champion Sam Urechia of Rochester, N. Y., and colorful Dynamite Billy Goodloe, Jr. of Valdosta.

Signing of Manley completes one of the best exhibition attractions of this kind to appear in quite a while.

Irwinville Five Snatches Its 31st Victory in Row

Bowdon, Berry, Rabun Also Win in B; Nevils, Arlington, Braselton Top C's

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

MACON, March 7.—It was the same old story. Country Children's country boys from Irwinville made believers out of the few skeptics in the packed City Auditorium here Wednesday night by obliterating Carnesville, 63-38, for their 31st straight victory of the year.

That was the piece de resistance of the opening round of the annual State Class B and C high school hardwood carnival, this thorough stunning upset over the Sixth District champs. Austell finished second to Berry in District Seven.

Bowdon eased by Tate, 37-32, with a final quarter spurt; Berry trimmed Soperton's Panthers, 57-41; and Rabun County clipped Quitman, 37-32, in other opening Class B games.

THURSDAY'S SCHEDULE

CLASS B

1:15 p. m.—Berry vs. Fort Valley.

3:45 p. m.—Clarkston vs. Bowdon.

7:30 p. m.—Rabun vs. Irwinville.

10:00 p. m.—Austell vs. Adrian.

CLASS C

12:00 Noon—Nevils vs. Montezuma.

taming of Jack Ratley's Wildcats, who had been bested only once in 29 starts.

The ease with which the Farmers won this Class B opener against so fine a team is hard to comprehend until one adds up the figures. They bucketed nine of 11 attempts from the field in the first quarter for a 20-9 advantage. They bagged 10 of 18 in the second stanza, and it was 42-22 at the half. Until the second string took over at the end of the third period, the South Georgians had shot 39 times, connected 24 times for a 65.5 percentage.

Smooth Emory Clements bucketed 21 points before taking a shower. O'Neal Register poured in 17 and Laverson dove in.

Austell and Cochran put on the most sensational scoring duel of the day with W. O. Smith's North Georgians romping in, 69-57, with Center Wilbur Reid being high man for the entire day with 29 points. Joe Smith of the Royals poured in 23. Austell led by from three to six points most of the way in registering the

Alabama's Thomas 'Lot Better'

BIRMINGHAM, March 7.—(AP) Alabama Athletic Director Frank Thomas "is a lot better" in his battle with a serious illness, Dr. Joe Hirsch, his physician, reported Wednesday night.

Thomas was brought to South Highlands Infirmary about two weeks ago suffering from complications in a long battle with a circulatory ailment. He had been listed in critical condition.

Dr. Hirsch said Thomas was "not out of the woods yet," but he appeared improved.

The physician said Thomas' pulse was a lot stronger, he was "a lot brighter" in his responses, and his heart action was better.

Thomas has been in ill health at times since he wound up a great active coaching career at Alabama in 1946. He won a similar serious bout with illness two years ago.

Tanner OK, But It's A Miracle

PENSACOLA, March 7.—Outfielder Chuck Tanner's career almost ended before it started this season. Tanner, who reported to the Crackers' training camp Wednesday, nearly lost his eyesight in an accident at New Castle, Pa., two weeks ago.

Working as a plumber's assistant, he poured wet lead in a moulding pot, setting off an explosion in which both eyes were injured. But he's okay now.

Another outfielder, Bob Verrier, who checked in Wednesday, is an athlete the year round. Verrier plays forward on a North Sydney hockey team in Nova Scotia during the off season.

Pitcher Walter Nothe and Outfielder Al Aucuin were the hardest workers in Wednesday's practice. Nothe, who pitches at 195, needs to shed about 15 pounds and Aucuin must lose 10 pounds.

Bill Currie, Nothe, Joe Kirkland and Joe Reardon tossed for batting practice. Reardon, a 15-game winner at Hagerstown last season, impressed Wyatt during his stint on the hill.

Larry LaSalle, signed to an Atlanta contract by the Boston Braves for $6,000 bonus last year, reveals one of the reasons he turned down a Pittsburgh offer. The Pirates, definitely interested in the New Orleans prep star, had ousted Vince Rizzo as general manager of the New Orleans Pels. Rizzo is an uncle of LaSalle's wife.

Wyatt and Little Rock Manager Gene Desautels were chuckling over the fact that Whit introduced Gene to his future wife when both were with Detroit in 1933.

The Public Means Business, Too

City Council's Police Committee tonight will begin an investigation of alleged irregularities in the handling of liquor licenses, which a grand jury charged have created a "vast financial empire" with huge political slush funds in the city and county.

The meeting will be open to the public. It will attract the crackpot fringe as well as serious persons who realize something must be done about a situation that has grown intolerable.

We do not believe the public is in any mood to stand by silently for a time-consuming reinvestigation of the charges of the Grand Jury. The Grand Jury's findings are disturbing and they demand action. While it is proper that city authorities should do all they can to get at the bottom of the situation, there ought not to be any stalling.

County Commissioners yesterday took a commendable step toward following the recommendations of the Grand Jury. They are to be congratulated. This matter will not "blow over." The public is aroused and it will not be lulled to sleep.

Commissioner Hailey's proposal, approved by the Commission, for an immediate investigation of all license holders, is sensible. It also is proper that licenses be renewed only for six months from next June 30, in view of the fact that all liquor stores in the County except two are located in areas scheduled to become a part of the City next Jan. 1.

We assume the new Grand Jury is going more deeply into the matter of the County Commissioners' timber deal. Surely there must be some way in which the county can avoid the loss of approximately $25,000, even if it loses the present case in court. The Grand Jury laid responsibility for the sale of timber rights on a county tract squarely upon Commissioners Doyal, Towns and Hailey. The sale was to James P. Malcolm for the sum of $30,500 and was voted by these three Commissioners at a time, the Grand Jury reported, when other offers were on file which would have brought the county about $55,000.

Should the county lose the present court case and be forced to go through with the sale, we hope the present Grand Jury will follow the recommendation of the previous one and "take action . . . to see that those who have violated the law be punished . . . if the law as to malpractice in office has been violated."

The public will keep close watch. It will be satisfied with nothing less than a complete clean-up.

Russia Covets Iran's Oil Resources

Unless Iran is able to maintain law and order there is a possibility Russia may take advantage of the situation created by the assassination of Premier Ali Razmara and move in on that country in force.

Although the assassinated premier was backed by this country, dispatches yesterday said Iranian officials agreed Communists were not involved in the matter.

But Iran has been under tremendous pressure from Russia for a long time. Any general outbreak of violence might offer Moscow the opportunity for stepping in—and incidentally taking over Iran's rich oil resources, which she covets. There is hope this will not occur.

It's Painful, But A Duty, Mr. Redwine

While we appreciate the position of Revenue Commissioner Charles Redwine, there is much to say for the resolution passed by the Macon Retail Merchants Bureau urging the Commissioner to establish uniform brackets for the collection of the new State sales tax on low-cost items.

Mr. Redwine has said he would not set price levels at which merchants will collect the tax from consumers, but will allow individual merchants to make their own decision. The law empowers the Commissioner to establish collection brackets but does not require that he do so.

Uniform brackets would prevent confusion and misunderstanding. The Macon organization has suggested a schedule calling for no tax on items up to 15 cents, one cent on items from 16 through 37 cents, two cents on those from 38 through 67 cents and three cents on items from 68 cents to $1.15. After that the straight three per cent tax would be charged.

That sounds reasonable enough, but what if Macon should adopt that schedule, Atlanta another, Augusta another and Savannah still another? Moreover, not all individual stores in those cities might be bound by such an agreement.

Mr. Redwine, as painful as the duty obviously would be, could prevent the ensuing inevitable confusion by prescribing a collection schedule which merchants all over the State would be required to follow. We hope he reconsiders and does so.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Beer and Wine, Too

The Editors: I sincerely hope that the present probe of the licenses on liquor will also cover the beer and wine licenses. For there are quite a few places in and around Atlanta that should be closed up.

It is not the police department's fault they are open. The licenses should not have been granted in the first place.

Atlanta. ROBERT R. JACKSON, SR.

Fine Public Service

The Editors: Thank you for making available for the people of Georgia the findings of the recent Grand Jury with reference to the liquor racket in Fulton County.

The articles which you are publishing from day to day will do much to acquaint the public with the real facts concerning the liquor traffic in Georgia. By so doing you are rendering a fine public service, for which I wish to heartily commend you.

Candy From a Child

The Editors: I am very much in favor of pay-as-you-go programs, even if it means more tax. I am for good schools and good roads if we can afford them, but I don't believe in taking candy from a child, in order to obtain them.

Are Alimony Controls Needed?

An Illinois judge has issued a lady a divorce decree with alimony payments tied directly to the cost-of-living index.

Inflation, thy spell is everywhere.

Time was when the aggrieved little woman was willing to settle for the kids, half the community property, a flat monthly figure and her attorney's fees . . . plus, of course, her maiden name back.

Now she wants another ounce of blood every time the Bureau of Labor Statistics takes the nation's economic pulse.

If the Illinois ruling is accepted as a precedent, a divorced citizen won't know whether he's going to be able to eat until the cost-of-living index is published and he finds out how much alimony he owes.

Of course, it conceivably could prove a good thing for the country's domestic stability, since, at the rate things are now going, it is just a question of time until divorce prices itself out of the market.

Incidentally, in contrast to the U. S.'s policy of sanctioning fluctuations of the marital mart, in the Uganda territory of Africa, the government has just stepped in and frozen the price of brides at the going price of five cows, five goats and $2.80.

Presumably, however, Uganda is like the United States in that matrimony is a lot cheaper to get into than out of.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Powerful Deterrent On the Soviets

WASHINGTON—It has remained for one of the country's foremost scientists, Dr. Vannevar Bush, a codeveloper of the atomic bomb, to give the best explanation yet heard of why we are not likely to be forced into a war with Soviet Russia at any time in the near future.

We are not prepared for such a war at the present time, except defensively through counter air attacks, and our major concern has been that we would find ourselves drawn into such a war before we were ready. All of our present rearmament program is directed to that end.

What happened in Korea served to put us on notice of the danger that threatens us from the Communist world, centered in Moscow. If the Communists had been able to get away with what was attempted there, the next move was scheduled to come in Western Europe. That most certainly would have involved us in another world war, since, as Gen. Eisenhower has so clearly pointed out, we cannot afford to have Europe come under the domination of Soviet Russia.

Restraint By our actions in Korea we have shown the Communists that we will not stand for aggression in other parts of the world. We do not, at the present time, have the power forces to back up our position; but, as Dr. Bush points out, we do have a powerful weapon of restraint in the atom bomb. An authority on the subject, he defines its war potential in a way that makes it easy to understand why the Russians have held back from making further moves and why they are not likely to commit other acts of aggression that would lead to war with us.

For, as Dr. Bush puts it, if the Soviets started war in Europe now, American atomic bombs "would destroy Russia." Explaining why the A-bomb remains a powerful deterrent to Russia, the scientist, a former head of the nation's Research and Development Board, had this to say:

"We could destroy not only the key centers from which her armies would be supplied, but also political centers and the communications of her armies on the march. Initially equipped with weapons and supplies, those armies might keep rolling for a time, but there would be no Russia behind them as we know it today.

"The answer to this is that the armies will not roll. No all-out war is in sight for the immediate future unless they or we make some serious error indeed.

"If Russia knows that she cannot go beyond certain boundaries without provoking a war, she will not pass those bounds; no war will occur. This has been well shown in recent years. The only apparent exception is in Korea, and there we did not make our position clear."

The 'IF' The problem, Dr. Bush warned, is to maintain the military stalemate now made possible by American atomic superiority. If the Russians were on equal terms with us in atomic bombs, the situation might be different. The fact that they are not explains why we are able to build up our defenses otherwise without their stepping in to strike while we were unprepared, except in the air.

If they move in Western Europe now, their armies might for a time overrun much of the area there. But in due course we would chop them to pieces in the rear, leaving the striking force in front cut in two like a snake with its head severed from the rest of its body.

It is reassuring to have a man of Dr. Bush's scientific status define the situation so simply. It does not make sense that the Russians will start anything while we have the atomic drop on them. Later when we have built up our other forces to the proper level, our aim is to have a showdown that will avoid war and lead to permanent world peace.

"The Lord looked down from heaven upon the children of men, to see if there were any that did understand, and seek God."—Psalms 14:2.

The question is raised, "What is fundamental in education?" To observe the emphasis placed in our schools upon acquiring technical knowledge and skills, one might suppose that that is the answer.

But the truth is that no scientific, literary and philosophical training will in itself suffice.

Man's quest ends with "humane education." It must find its inspiration and obligation in the divinely revealed love of the Heavenly Father.

The goal of a sound mind in a sound body can be reached only as this soundness takes account of emotions, attitudes, impulses, and is girded by all that is true, pure, honorable, and of good report.

Unto Thee alone who are able to instruct us and uphold us, we come for wisdom. Make plain to us our failures. Keep us in the circle of Thy love.

He Stands High in His Town

Friends of J. Roy McGinty know the Calhoun publisher as an able reporter, forthright editorialist, statesman, handsome cuss and jolly good fellow, but not many of them were aware that J. Roy is also a piano player. It took one of those "Editor of the Week" articles in the Publishers' Auxiliary to reveal that when the owner of The Calhoun Times would relax he sits at the keyboard, a la Harry Truman, and picks out old-time songs and hymns. Born in Tallapoosa, Ala., in 1887, this prominent member of the Georgia press gave up a dollar a day in a cotton mill for a week as an apprentice in the office of The West Point (Ga.) News. He was 15 then and in the 48 years since he's done quite well enough to qualify for a dollar-a-year job advising that other piano player, if he chose to do so.

Roy McGinty would do well at the double-keyboard, for his extracurricular activities have taken him into service as councilman, mayor of Calhoun, school board member (city and State), State Senator and War Labor Board panel member.

He has been "Man of the Year" and Rotary president in his home town and president of the Georgia Press Association.

His paper ranks high among Georgia weeklies, both typographically and editorially, and his editorials are always a strong competitor, often a winner, of the annual GFA "most fearless" trophy.

You don't drop in to visit J. Roy and his fine wife, Myrtle. You climb the highest mountain. For this publisher has achieved a top spot in his community, figuratively and literally. The McGintys live in a spacious home on Mount Alto, than which you can get no higher and stay in Calhoun.

At this altitude there's no disturbing the neighbors when he goes to the piano for relaxation with the old airs and hymns. But when he gets his feet on the ground, in local affairs and State politics, and the medium is the typewriter keyboard, the mood becomes fortissimo as this man McGinty makes himself heard.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Truman Owes It to All of Us

WASHINGTON—The Truman Administration is getting on the wrong side of the very plain moral issue of good government. President Truman, himself, is much to blame through his defensive, chip-on-the-shoulder attitude in respect to the callous carelessness about the simple proprieties that has existed in some quarters as disclosed in the current RFC expose. He can ill afford to be. This is not only because he is the President and steward of 150,000,000 people and not President of his friends. It is also because he heads an administration, as did his predecessor, which, due to its covenant with the plain people, lives in a glass house to a greater degree than have many others. That imposes a special obligation on him and on those around him.

It would seem incumbent upon a President who is continually storming the citadels of special privilege—and sincerely—that he be very sure that special privileges are not taken by those around him to play loose with the operations of government contrary to the best public interest.

For that government belongs to the people and must be protected from those, masquerading as its friends, who would exploit it selfishly, as it must be protected against big private interests that would exploit it for their selfish ends. In some cases around here now it is hard to see much difference.

A failure of stewardship that gives license to "friends around the throne" offers an opening for attacks by those who are constantly sniping at government—for the many with its praiseworthy social welfare and economic reform objectives. The result is to let down the rank and file who put their trust and hopes in government administered for their protection and, likewise, to weaken instruments of government designed to promote general public interest as, in the present instance the RFC.

This is illustrated in the great hue and cry now to abolish that lending agency.

No President can possibly know at all times what goes on in every agency of government. The sprawling mechanism is too big. But, when he discovers that something improper is going on, he can speak out and can correct it, instead of merely bristling up as if he were being criticized personally.

It is the comparatively trivial matters that make the headlines and attract public attention—the deep freezes, the autographed photographs of officials, the smuggled perfume, as it was back in the investigation of the "five per-centers" who posed as influential with insiders in getting government contracts. Now it is a fur coat and free bed and board at smart Miami hotels that stir up talk in the RFC inquiry.

BLONDE IN MINK COAT or man in Uncle Sam's uniform, the annual cost of upkeep is the same, about $10,000, according to a dispatch datelined Washington.

But that is no reason the Federal Government should support both—on borrowed money.

LOST "HOPPY": Sara Lawson McGinty tells in the Chatsworth Times of a 3-year-old lost in a large department store who told the information booth his name was Hopalong Cassidy and that his parents were Roy Rogers and Dale Evans. "The store officials were showing signs of strain," says Sara, "when the mother appeared on the scene."

In Perry when L. C. Todd took his 9-year-old daughter to the hospital to see Mama Todd and the new baby, the young lady, noting the Todd infant as the only one in the nursery, remarked, "Well, Daddy, we got the last one, didn't we?" So reports the Houston Home Journal.

HEADLINE OF THE WEEK: "One Man Hurt Here in Two Accidents"—Dade County Times.

Must have been the fellow trussed with bandages and obviously bruised of whom a friend asked, "Have an accident?"

"No, thanks," said the bandaged one. "Just had one!"

They arouse interest because they are easily understood by people who can never own a fur coat and can never stay on the cuff at luxurious hostesseries along Miami's shore. They are "news," the spicy stuff for gossip at the ladies' aid and the barbershop, and set off the imagination to conjure up many other "fancy goings-on down there in Washington."

They are ready ammunition for any wrecking crew.

But, more than that, they are symptomatic of an attitude that develops around here periodically—that government more or less belongs to certain people who know their way around its mazes, a sort of special preserve for profit and temporary fame, a closed corporation. It is a cynical attitude.

It breeds cynicism among the people, and our people are enough inclined, naturally, to make game of their politicians. It is a type of escapism to low-rate their political leaders, to speak lightly of them, even if we discount a good deal to our native indulgence in exaggeration.

People, too, have a dual personality in their approach toward government. Now they are mere bystanders and now they are constituents trying to get something. In the latter role they harry their Congressmen for introductions at departments and agencies, which is normal and proper business for their public servants. Some who are not content with this routine procedure and have the wherewithal become suckers for "influence" peddlers and keep that breed prosperous. Then one day, a committee exposes all of it.

As now. And it's a good time, it would seem, to do some house cleaning and get the smell off. President Truman owes it to all of us.

A Curtain on Curtain Land

Going out into a world made tense by the ideological conflict between East and West, students graduating from the nation's high schools take with them from the halls of learning limited knowledge of the Soviet Union, the nation which has brought partial mobilization to this country and a drastic revision of the chances of a world at peace. A nation-wide survey, recently completed, reached these conclusions: "Textbooks used in this nation's high schools virtually ignore the history, geography, social studies or other texts used in the classrooms. Most students get only a smattering of knowledge about the customs, beliefs, ideas or attitudes of the Russian people."

The quoted matter is from a Benjamin Fine article in the New York Times reporting on a study of the materials the high schools use that relate to the Soviet Union. The survey was made by Dr. Richard W. Burkhardt, director of the Division of Teacher Preparation at the Syracuse University School of Education, as a doctorate study.

According to the survey, geography books used in the nation's schools devote 8 per cent of their space to Russia; world history books, 7 per cent; American history, 1 per cent, and modern problems and citizenship, less than 1 per cent.

Dr. Burkhardt holds that the significance of the Soviet Union to the United States and the world today calls for more material about that nation in American textbooks. Fine writes.

The 258-page Burkhardt report states: "It is conceivable that the differences in political practice, cultural background, and economic orientation between the two nations could be magnified so as to bring about war between them." It is equally conceivable that the similarities in geographic setting, temperament of the people and national development could be the foundation for the building and maintaining of peaceful relations.

"The very real conflicts of interests in Europe and Asia between the United States and the U.S.S.R. should be frankly and clearly stated. The equally real instances of mutual interest must also appear. In no other way can we expect our students to be adequately informed about the major issue of our day."

Dr. Burkhardt points out that it is difficult to secure accurate information about the Soviet Union, but makes a number of recommendations concerning teaching about the country. Among these were:

1. That more time be given to studying that nation.
2. That teaching about the Soviet Union be confined to the most important aspects of that nation and its people.
3. Judicious use should be made of pamphlets and other periodical material dealing with Russia.
4. Full use of current events.

CHANNING COPE

A Great Future for Livestock

VALDOSTA—"Let us discuss the ramifications of prestige," says Dr. Milton Jarnagin, dean of Georgia's livestock men. "Let us discuss prestige before we start saving the world, for prestige is a very fine thing to have or a very fine state to be in, according to the way you phrase it." "You mean, Doctor, that Georgia is acquiring prestige by reason of the excellence of her cattle? Is that it, Doctor?" "Yes, and no!" "Yes, Georgia is getting prestige from its cattle, and 'no,' because I was thinking about the prestige one gets from driving a big automobile." "May we have the details, Doctor?" "You may. I drove up here to the livestock pavilion in a borrowed limousine instead of my usual puddle-jumper and what do you think happened? Before I could detrain I was handed three show and sale catalogs, given four invitations to lunch, and offered the opportunity to purchase the grand champion bull, the grand champion female and 14 other animals, every one of them the best in the show. This was prior to the judge's decisions, you understand."

And while I was making overtures to borrow his borrowed car (on a percentage basis) to drive past the lairs of my creditors, the Doctor went on to talk about the eleventh annual show and sale of the S. E. Polled Hereford Association. "It is almost impossible to exaggerate the improvement of this year's consignment of cattle over the previous show. They are much better than last year's consignment. The cattle of three years ago would not even belong in the group of winners in this year's show."

"The cattle of 10 years ago would not be allowed under the same roof as the animals in this show. Out of the entire 47 animals consigned this year, there is only one gimlet-rumped dog in the bunch and . . . he came from Florida, thank goodness!"

Sure enough, Dr. Jarnagin's predictions turned

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Who Is Representing Labor?

NEW YORK—The decision of the veteran professional parasites on the body of American labor to get out of the so-called defense administration is carelessly taken to mean that the people who work for wages now have nobody to speak for them. That is not true. The Government represents all of us. The Messrs. Green, Murray, Lewis and all their predatory, dictatorial kind never have had the slightest authority from the working people of the United States. They have been called "labor leaders," but not one of them ever deserved this title. In the press, this was an error of carelessness and convenience in the long ago. There is now no excuse for the misrepresentation in the light of our modern knowledge of the United States. These men are bosses, not leaders. Not one of them has a valid mandate from any group of workers.

Green is elected by a gang of fellow racketeers aloof from the workers. He is invariably found on the side of the professional goon in any conflict with a rank-and-filer. The same can be said of Murray.

The rascality of Lewis' electoral system is worse, if possible, than the Kansas City process to which we are indebted for the President who touched off the war that now calls for the mobilization of national resources.

It would be a boon to labor if the current sulk of the boss unionists should become permanent and Mr. Truman should close the door on the whole gang for all time. The official conduct of these audacious predators in World War II was so bad that Congress should not have faltered at the 38th parallel drawn by Taft and Hartley, but should have repealed the Wagner Act absolutely and liberated some 12,000,000 subjects from bondage. These old bums had taken a pretentious public vow to prevent strikes in war industries. That promise was violated to the extent of about 5,000 strikes a year.

In the present situation, Truman is revealing again that strange trait of spunky defiance so seldom exercised in the public interest and so often in the interest of rascals in his personal circle. In this rare instance, he is ignoring the rogues of the union racket in a manner which amounts to a public repudiation of the whole evil of unionism by a President who invoked it to get elected.

It is reasonable, in view of the public stupidity concerning the functions and powers of unions, to inquire who would represent "labor" if the unions were taken at their word in with-educators brought general agreement with Dr. Burkhardt's principal thesis that textbooks present a limited picture of Soviet Russia today, but a number of significant points were made by these educators, among them being:

1. Newspapers and the radio both hold important positions in the teaching of subjects related to the Soviet Union. Two educators interviewed said these mediums constitute the principal source of authoritative information on the Soviet Union.

2. Textbooks have a considerable lag in presenting "historical" evaluation of comparatively recent events. The Rooseveltian era was cited as an example. Balanced and thorough treatment of this recent era is just now beginning to appear in textbooks. Another example was the fact it took years for the appearance of dispassionate accounts of the War Between the States. What is happening in Russia today is of comparative recent beginning.

3. Understanding is not a one-way street. Russia does not present an accurate picture of herself, it was observed. Dictatorship there has perverted the mediums of information, and the Russian people are being given distorted versions of all history, both their own and ours, and of all people. Consequently, it is very difficult to secure competent information on the Soviet Union.

4. The desirability of understanding between the two nations was stressed, but at the same time it was acknowledged that the announced Communist goal of world domination with its attendant tenseness in all lands, made the attainment of that ideal most difficult.

With the reservations as noted above, still it is difficult to realize that the nation which by its actions wields a tremendous influence on our existence of today, and of tomorrow, is so sketchily covered during the primary days of learning.

Perhaps it will be to the interest of the U. S. Government to make available, perhaps even to publish, the latest and most complete information available on Russia and her people for use by the students of today who as citizens of tomorrow will face the problem of dealing with the inhabitants of the Soviet Union—either in war, or in peace.

out right. The grand champion bull, consigned by our neighbor, L. J. Moore, of Holly Springs Farm, brought $6,750. Fortunately, the bull remains in Georgia, having been purchased by Haddock Farms of Damascus, Ga. The reserve champion bull, also consigned by Holly Springs Farm, went to H. W. Perrow, of Cameron, S. C. The grand champion female, consigned by John Davenport, of Crestview Farms, Atlanta, sold for $3,500, and went to Frank Crosslin, of Eagleville, Tenn. The reserve champion female went to W. H. Dyer, of Eagleville, Tenn. She was consigned by B. H. Butts, Jr., of Thomaston, Ga. The 18 bulls sold for an average of $1,850 and the 28 females averaged $1,315. The show average was $1,516 per head.

Harking back to Dr. Jarnagin's theme of prestige, the cattle so impressed Dr. A. E. Darlow, of Oklahoma, judge of the show, that he stated emphatically and publicly, "You folks in the Southeast are really in the purebred livestock business. Anyone who can produce cattle of this quality has arrived. And with your fine grasses and pleasant climate (ahem!) there is no way to stop you. I predict a great livestock future for Georgia and the Southeast."

drawing and were not invited back. The people of the United States have an honest, if inexcusable, superstition that unions are necessary to prevent the Government and the employing corporations from taking unfair advantage of toilers. That error has been hollered up for many years by experts, including even some clergy who should know better and, in some cases, undoubtedly do. There was a time when unions were voluntary associations of genuine workers and, in that legitimate sole, performed good work for their members. But nowadays it is impossible to draw a line of distinction separating "labor" or the "wage-earner" from that other element known as "the public."

"Labor" and "the public" are not groups apart. "Labor" is an important portion of "the public" and is represented by the Congress. Labor deserves no special representation.

The union racketeer thrives on trouble and when trouble accidentally is not, he kicks up trouble so that he may seem to the workers to be fighting their battle. That only complicates the task of men who really do want to establish efficiency in the mobilization and to keep wages and the cost of everything the worker buys within a hand-span. It may be thought that, with the unions absolutely eliminated from the situation, the Government will fix wages and thus become the master state. Of course, it will. The Government did that in World War II. The unions made trouble constantly and ran up the cost by many billions, but actually they were going through motions. When you came right down to it, the Government made the decisions and will do it again in this war. The unions themselves are a master state, so what can be gained by all the lost motion, expense and delay of treating with them?

All's Not Well With the Navy

NEW YORK—There were three seats open at my table, in the Pennsylvania R. R. diner, so three of the 12 Navy ratings sat down, and the other nine distributed themselves at other tables.

It developed that all of these big guys were Navy reservists. It also developed that all of them were burned at the Navy, for which they'd volunteered in World War II.

"You see," said one of the men, "since 1945 we've raised families and got a start in business. This reserve deal stinks, because we don't know when we'll get out. A lot of us feel we've been shanghaied."

A reporter asked, politely: "Well, why did you guys join the reserve, after World War II?" The answers rushed back.

"THEY TOLD US, after we were discharged," said one big guy, "that in the event of another war, we'd get our ratings back. In 1945, none of us thought there'd be another national emergency in 1950, so we signed up, with the understanding that we could resign any time we wished."

"Yeah," snorted another, "so I did that; I resigned from the active reserve. The gimmick, however, is that they then drop you into the inactive reserve, and unless you're smart enough to send another letter, resigning from the inactive reserve, you're just as hooked as you were in the active reserve."

"DON'T GET US WRONG," said a good-looking kid. "We proved our patriotism once, and we'll do it again, but we ought to know how long a hitch we're to serve. If we could tell our wives and kids that we'll be back in a year, or two years, that would give us something definite on which to go. This way, it's like being whirled around on the end of a string, and I don't think our wives and children rate it."

It would seem to this reporter that the Navy ought to sit down and come to some definite understanding with the reservists, tell them, if they can, how long they'll be needed, and when they can plan to pick up their shattered business careers. The situation, at present, is not sound.

When a Mad Dog Bites You

If a mad dog bites you, don't kill valuable time trying to get to a physician for first aid. Just plunge the wound immediately into some strong soapy water and soak it good for about 20 minutes. This is some new advice being given by Dr. T. F. Sellers, director of the Georgia Health Department, which has attracted nation-wide attention since it recently appeared in a medical textbook. Sellers, who has made the study of rabies his hobby for 30 years, says that the public and even doctors in the past have had too great a fear of rabies because of superstition and mystery which formerly surrounded the disease. It formerly has been the custom to cauterize the bite wounds with strong nitric acid. Recent experiments show that washing with soapy water is just as good a method for destroying rabies virus and other germs.

The soap treatment is preferred by Sellers because it isn't painful and doesn't damage tissues or cause unnecessary scarring as the nitric acid sometimes does. Chiefly, however, soapy water is immediately available in every home.

Sellers warns that this is solely first-aid treatment—you must get in touch with a physician or the nearest health department for further instructions.

When a group of physicians of Southern medical schools recently edited a new textbook, Sellers contributed a chapter on rabies. He received requests from over the nation for more information on the soapy-water first-aid treatment.

The Greater Atlanta area is the rabies center of Georgia at present, Sellers says. However, he points out that rabies has been whipped as a problem in Georgia. Not a Georgian has died of rabies infection in four years. Yet, prior to that time, 90 Georgians died over a period of 30 years.

Passage of the State-wide compulsory dog vaccination law in 1945 was a major step in knocking out rabies. In the past five years the number of positive animal heads examined in the State has declined from 762 to 407. The number of human antirabic treatments has declined from 2,426 to 895.

Continuing the discussion of public health in Georgia, Dr. Sellers pointed out that the purpose of the State Premarital Law was to prevent the spread of syphilis in the marital relationship. The law, which became effective in 1949, required that the applicant for a marriage license have a blood test and that such examination satisfy the physician that the applicant is not infected with syphilis, or if so infected the disease is not in an infectious stage.

Results of the first year's operation of the law showed that 4.5 per cent of the premarital blood tests were positive. Of the 92,328 premarital blood tests made, 4,128 were positive, 815 were doubtful and 87,385 were negative.

Recalling a letter he received from a 60-year-old couple asking if they had to have a blood test at their age, Sellers declared that there is absolutely no exception to the Premarital Law. All who obtain marriage licenses in Georgia must first have the blood test.

RFC Director Admits Efforts To 'Use' Him

'Somebody Took Me In, I Guess,' Dunham Tells Senate Quiz

WASHINGTON, March 7—(AP)—Walter L. Dunham, RFC director, acknowledged Wednesday that some members of a White House social circle in which he moved tried to "use" him in angling for huge government loans.

"Somebody took me in, I guess," he told the Senate Banking Subcommittee, which is investigating alleged favoritism and political influence in RFC lending.

"I think I am entirely lacking in political sagacity," Dunham, a 68-year-old Detroit banker who has been a Republican all his life, said the social group he referred to included Dunaid Dawson, one of President Truman's aides; William E. Willett, another RFC director; E. Merl Young, well-to-do husband of a White House stenographer, and Rex Jacobs, a Detroit industrialist who Dunham described as having "some degree of White House entree."

But Dunham stated, "I am positive no one has succeeded in exerting any improper influence upon my decision on any RFC matter."

"With reference to Donald Dawson," he added, "I must state that I can recall no instance where he sought to influence my judgment on an RFC loan."

Dunham un-ordered himself behind closed doors, but the committee made public a prepared statement he submitted and later released a transcript of the testimony. In a session lasting more than three hours, he was the star witness.

"The boys took you in?" Senator Capehart, Republican, Indiana, a subcommittee member asked.

"Somebody took me in, I guess," Dunham replied. "They were kind to me and—"

"They took you in," Capehart repeated.

"That is your conclusion. I am not prepared to dispute it."

Later, however, Dunham said he meant he was taken in by "a fellow who owned a house." There was no elaboration on this.

Dunham, who wants to get off the five-man RFC board as soon as he can, testified he thought the giant government agency suffered from "an unhappy selection of directors." He summed it up:

"I think our contacts with Congress were bad. I think our contacts with the public were bad. I think our common understanding of our responsibility was never explored."

Capehart commented to reporters at the close of the hearing: "I think he was used, but they didn't have to twist his arm very hard."

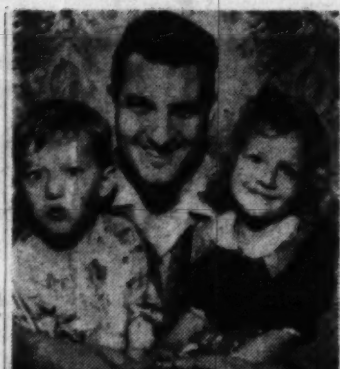

Dunham acknowledged in his statement that William M. Boyle, Jr., Democratic National Chairman, had sent him many loan applicants, and that at least one came to him from the White House.

He said his association with Dawson and the other men he named began soon after he took office about two years ago.

"I knew that Jacobs was active in the Democratic Party and had some degree of White House entree," he related. "My impression was that the group was solely interested in the welfare of the Truman administration and that any RFC interest they had was along this line."

"It now seems clear to me that they used their friendship with me, and possibly bits of information which they thereby picked up, to convince others that they could 'influence' my decisions."

Merchants Ask Brackets In Sales Tax

Atlanta and Macon merchants want to absorb the sales tax on low-priced items, urging the State Revenue Commissioner to adopt a bracket system for administering the tax.

Revenue Commissioner Charlie Redwine, however, is planning to let the merchants set their own individual bracket system. The state will collect a straight three percent tax from the merchant.

One fast-taxpaying Lithonia merchant already has his sales tax back.

Although the tax doesn't go into effect until April 1, Director Albert Dozier of the Sales Tax Unit.

Building of New 'Y' Will Start Here Soon

Plans for the new $700,000 YWCA at Edgewood Ave. and Ivy Street, have reached the construction stage, although the proposed swimming pool for the building will be delayed until restrictions are lifted by the National Production Authority.

Written permission for the new building, minus the swimming pool, was received Monday from the Production Board and a directors meeting voted unanimously Wednesday to start construction soon. The new quarters will be ready for occupancy in about a year.

Twelve-Year-Old Rules Home, Instructs Servants, Pays Bills

By ANNIE LOU HARDY

Birney Robert is 12 years old. She lives in her own house in Georgetown, Va. She manages her own finances, even making out her income tax. After school, she looks after her dogs and her garden, and holds conferences with her cook. And thereby lies an experiment.

Birney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Robert, of Atlanta and Washington, D. C., and it was her mother who planned the experiment two years ago to help her daughter become the sturdy, self-reliant youngster that she is.

"With the economic situation what it is today, it is well to prepare children at an early age for any eventuality," said Mrs. Robert. "At least Birney will always have a roof over her head, and if she shoulders the responsibility of a home gradually, she will not be like a ship without a rudder, so to speak, when the time comes to get married."

The Roberts live at the Mayflower when in Washington, and at the Biltmore in Atlanta. Mrs. Robert thinks hotels are no place for children.

"We also travel a lot," she explained, "so I thought it best to anchor Birney in one place. She lives, of course, with her governess, Miss Mathilde Pistel, who has had charge of her since she was a baby."

Birney's house is a smallish red brick structure built on three floors, with a terrace and a garden to the rear. Since she was to live in the house, Mrs. Robert urged her to select the colors for its redecoration.

"She did remarkably well," said the proud mother. "She knew enough to paint a rather dark bedroom on the first floor a sunny yellow. She chose French gray for her dining room, and because she is nuts about animals, she selected wallpaper with a horse motif for her own boudoir. In fact, there was only one mistake. She wanted her bathroom in the pale pink shade of an Elizabeth Arden powder box, so she gave the painter a box top to go by. Then she went out to play. When she returned the tint was too deep."

Two days each week, Birney holds conferences with her cook and makes out her menus. And she always plans her menus when she has guests.

"She is becoming something of a gourmet, too," said her mother. "Her taste runs to French artichokes and shad roe which must be browned to a turn."

This 12-year-old also has definite ideas about the china she uses for "company" meals, and she arranges the flowers for her table, cutting them from her garden when in season. Mostly she favors cacti for her garden, for they give it a "western" air.

In fact, cactus-growing comes next to her dog as a hobby. So instead of giving her dolls and toys, friends are likely to send her rare specimens of the desert plant.

Out of income derived from stocks and bonds given her by her father, Birney must pay for anything that is not routine expense of her home. For instance, she must bear all expenses of her dog, Chipso, and if she wants a new pair of riding boots, they must come out of her money. So must all entertaining.

Most of her parties are held in the basement playroom which she decorated in a patriotic motif of red, white and blue. However, it is her bedroom which is the envy of all her young friends and classmates at the Potomac School.

"The room is alive with animals," said Mrs. Robert. "For her bookcases are filled with small china animals instead of books. She has the skin of a bear I killed, as well as the horns of deer and antelope I shot. Really, I dread for Spring to come," she concluded, "for Birney is a collector at heart, and she is likely to show up with just anything from the animal kingdom."

If Birney has problems which she and Mathilde cannot solve, she saves them for her mother's next visit.

"I am treated like a guest," Mrs. Robert said, "and Birney is on her best behavior. Of course, I try to mind my P's and Q's, too, so we always see each other in the best light. It is really surprising how well my experiment has turned out."

Restore Sink Sparkle

If your sink has a general yellowish cast and has lost that gleaming white look, you can restore its sparkle. Soak paper towels in a bottle of laundry bleach and press them flat against the sink, leaving them overnight to insure getting that white look back again. If the yellow rust still persists, use a powdered product made for rust stains. Pure bleach is very powerful, so be sure to handle it carefully and not splash any on your clothes.

Pistol Club Slates Meet In Tampa

By YOLANDE GWIN

Mrs. Lulah Skvirsky, Atlanta's champion woman pistol shooter, who has taught many of Atlanta's female shooters, will meet them in competition next week in Tampa.

These pistol-packing mamas, as well as some of the members of the North Fulton Pistol Club, leave here Saturday for the Florida city where they will shoot in the national Mid-Winter Pistol Matches. Mrs. Skvirsky won second place at the shoot last year as well as the gold medal in her class in the slow-fire match at 50 yards.

Dr. Guy Davis, an instructor at the local club, will also attend next week's meet and among others who will attend and participate are Leon Skvirsky, also an instructor; Mrs. Jud Bowen, Dr. and Mrs. Willard Hunnicutt, Mrs. Dick Ivey, Miss Ava Hart and Bruce Moran.

Mrs. Hunnicutt recently qualified as a marksman in the National Rifle Association, as did Mrs. Spencer Boyd, also a club member.

MRS. GREY HAD "GROUCHY" FEET

... they were always complaining! Sometimes it was the arches. Sometimes it was the heels. Often it was just a hodge-podge of aches and pains.

She tried to soothe them with all kinds of shoes... but they seemed to be un-sooth-able. Mrs. Grey was very blue.

Then she discovered DR. LOCKE SHOES! And—wonder of wonders—they were so comfortable her feet just couldn't find anything to be "grouchy" about. They never complained from that day on!

Baker's to Give Six Full Wardrobes of Shoes

WALTER L. RANDOLPH
To Manage New Baker's

After twenty-two years with one company in Atlanta, thousands of shoppers know the genial manager of Baker's. Mr. Randolph is mighty proud of his beautiful new store with its deep carpets, comfortable chairs, lovely displays—and, of course, the exciting new shoes for Spring. A native of Carterville, Ga., Mr. Randolph is married and the proud father of a 17-year-old son who looks just like his daddy. The Randolphs live at 486 Melview Ave., S. W.

Winners Permitted To Select Own Prizes at Store

Six lucky Atlanta women will win complete shoe wardrobes at the grand opening of Baker's beautiful new shoe store next Friday and Saturday, March 9th and 10th, at 63 Whitehall St. Each wardrobe will consist of three pairs of dress shoes, with matching handbags, a pair of casual shoes, a pair of sports shoes, a pair of play shoes and a pair of bedroom slippers and three pairs of nylon hosiery.

Opening day visitors will be given numbered cards with space for name and address. These will be filled in and dropped into a box at the door. Each winner will be allowed to select her own wardrobe prize. No purchase required and you need not be present to win. Baker's is a division of Edison Brothers Stores, Inc., largest retailers of women's shoes in America, who began operation 29 years in Atlanta and now have 223 stores in 35 states and the District of Columbia.

Find a Scotch Lass on Whitehall And Save on Your Easter Shoes

When you see the smiling Scotch lassie above, giving away money in front of 63 Whitehall St. tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, you'll know you're in front of the new Baker's Shoe Store.

And a real thrift celebration it will be with free gifts and attendance prizes. Baker's, of course, is famous for its fine quality at money-saving prices. And this year those savings will be more important than ever. So look for the Scotch lassies if you want to save on your new Easter shoes.

Newest Fashions In Baker's Show

Atlanta-Born Baker's Now Largest In U. S.

Atlanta is the birthplace of Edison Brothers Stores, Inc., now the largest retailers of women's shoes in America. The Edisons started in business with one store in Atlanta just twenty-nine years ago! The chain now includes 223 stores in 120 cities—35 states and the District of Columbia. All four Edison brothers . . . Harry, Sam, Irving and Simon . . . are active in the operation of the shoe stores. Baker's Shoe Stores pioneered the idea of offering "high-priced" shoe fashions at low prices through large volume of sales. Mr. Edison states: "Our stores are always located on the busiest streets where crowds of shoppers pass. Only in this way can we get the volume sales which make our low prices possible."

Navy Blue Again Dominates Store's Easter Selections

By SELMA STILES

All the newest ideas in fashion footwear will be presented in Baker's spring styles, many of which will be shown for the first time during opening days. Outstanding styles which will be presented include a group of stripings . . . shoes that accent the lovely natural lines of a foot, yet bare most of it to the sheer flattery of nylon hose.

One of these styles is a black patent leather sandal, with narrow straps that double-cross the instep and buckle high on the ankle. Around the sole is an illusion-platform . . . actually a guard that protects the foot and holds firm the shape of the shoe. Under seven dollars.

Much is made of kid leathers in the new collection, too. Perhaps because kid is the leather most desirable in the new, brilliant colors.

Anklet Sandal

One style is an ankle sandal that knots around the ankle, continuing the braided, knotted appearance of the bare vamp. In combinations of blue—powder, royal and navy; beige-cocoa-brown . . . in pastel multicolor combinations, in beige-cocoa-tangerine. Under seven dollars. Baker's has selected a tremendous group of exactly color-matched handbags too, which, with these shoes, make very dramatic costume accents.

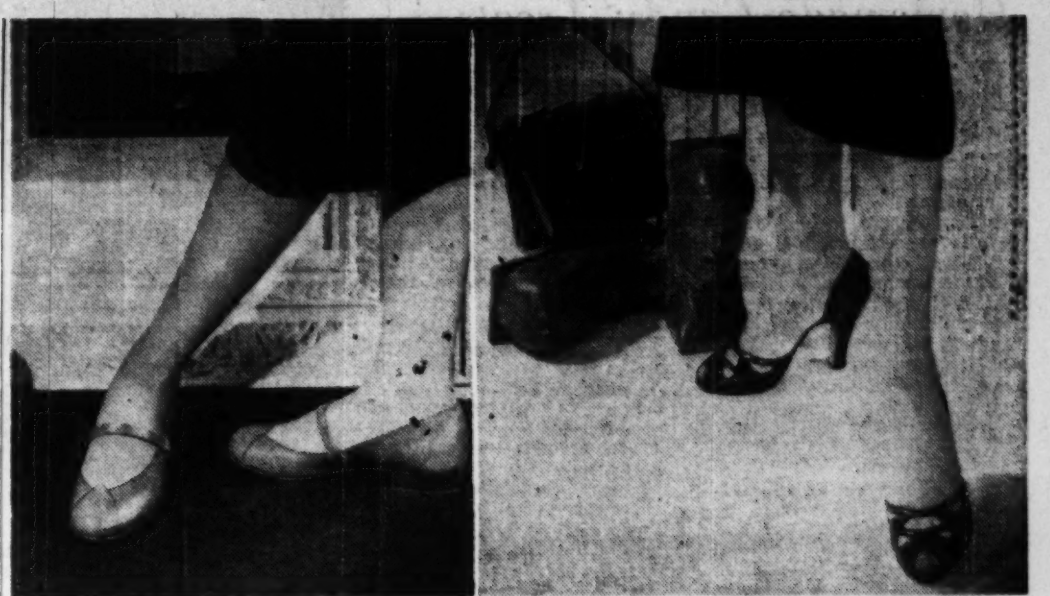

Navy blue is, of course, dominant in this Easter-timed presentation. And much of the navy blue is accented with sparkling-fresh white! In tiny dots . . . underlaid beneath the leather, seen through perforations. And in white piping that accents bows, platforms, and cut-out vamp designs. There are handbags designed to carry out the theme of most of these styles, too. Mesh is new for spring. So, of course, Baker's has several new styles in mesh! Most of these are combined with kid, calf or patent leather in the design of the shoe, so the shoe will hold its lines, stay lovely looking longer.

Smart Looking

These shoes are not only new, but show much consideration for the customer on the part of the shoe designers . . . because, not only are they smart looking now . . . they'll be comfortable and much in demand for the summer season, too!

We predict popularity for a D'Orsay pump, done in navy mesh . . . with a mesh vamp done with an overlay of thin little calfskin strips; also in navy. The same shoe comes in white mesh with multicolor kid, or in beige mesh with the beige-ombre (beige-cocoa-brown) calf. Under seven dollars.

The collection also includes many new styles with walkable heels. Suit-sandals seem slated for popularity for Easter, too. These feature middlin' heels, and strap-fastenings that flatter the instep with FOOTLIGHT FEELING . . . Dramatic little flia from the beautiful Baker's Shoe Store on Whitehall Street. This little Playgoer's one-strap style is designed to give all the fit and flattery of a dancing slipper, fashioned in soft, glove leather for a really light-footed feeling! In red, navy, tangerine, black and many merry colors, priced only $3.99.

DARE TO BARE . . . Midriff O'Orsay pump in shining black patent or gleaming navy calf-skin . . . its gracious, flattering lines accented with white dots. A Quail-Craft shoe, under seven dollars. With it, a genuine match-mated handbag at $3.98, plus tax. Both from the beautiful new Baker's Shoe Store at 63 Whitehall Street.

FOLLOW THE WHITE LINE . . . to fashion! New spring season platform pump in gleaming navy or red polished leather, with fresh white piping accenting the bow, outlining the platform. Unusual value at $6.99. The match-mating handbag in "looks like calf" plastic is $2.98, plus tax. Both from the beautiful, new Baker's Shoe Store.

SILHOUETTE SANDAL . . . Most wonderful way to flatter a foot! Every line and curve as graceful as can be! Open and airy, too, with the very feel of spring! In navy or lipstick red gleaming leather, just $5.99. The matching handbag is genuine leather too, as just $2.98, plus tax. Both from the beautiful, new Baker's Shoe Store.

Homemade Candy Treats Within Everyone's Reach

By AGNES REASON OLMSTEAD

The famous American "sweet tooth" knows no season—candy has year-round appeal. So why not have a family candy-making night often?

Sugar, candy's main ingredient, is a valuable fuel food. However, if eaten between meals or at the beginning of a meal, it may dull the appetite before good nutrition needs are met. Candy is best eaten as a dessert.

Most candies are cooked to exact temperatures. The only way to measure this temperature is with a candy thermometer (housefurnishing and hardware stores sell them).

You can only get an approximate idea of temperature by using the cold water test and such a test may be off several degrees just enough to result in failures with fudge, penuche, and divinities.

The following candy recipes can be safely made by any amateur since they require no special equipment or skill. Some recipes are easy enough for the children to make when their gang comes in.

PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE
2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
2 tablespoons white corn syrup
1/4 cup peanut butter
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Combine first five ingredients in saucepan over low heat. Stir constantly until sugar dissolves. Then, stirring occasionally, cook to 235 degrees on candy thermometer, or until a little mixture dropped in cold water forms a soft ball. Remove from heat, do not stir. Cool to 110 degrees or until you can rest hand on bottom of pan. Add peanut butter and vanilla and beat until mixture loses gloss and small amount will hold its shape when dropped from spoon. Turn into buttered 9x5x3-inch pan. Don't scrape pan too closely—fudge may sugar. Cool; cut in squares. Makes about 1 1/4 pounds.

QUICK CHOCOLATE FUDGE
2 eggs
1 pound confectioner's sugar
1 cup chopped nut meats
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
8 squares unsweetened chocolate
2 tablespoons butter
32 blanched almonds for garnish, if desired

Beat eggs until light and fluffy, add sifted confectioner's sugar and mix until smooth; then add nut meats and vanilla. Melt chocolate in top of double boiler over boiling water. Stir frequently; blend in butter. Remove chocolate mixture from heat and pour into sugar mixture; combine thoroughly. Pour immediately into a well-buttered glass utility dish. If desired, press blanched almonds on top. Cut candy as soon as firm. Makes 32 large pieces.

DIVINITY
1/2 cup white corn syrup
2 cups sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup water
2 egg whites
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Combine first four ingredients in saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved. Cook, without stirring, to hard ball stage, 260 degrees or until a small amount of mixture forms a hard ball when tested in very cold water. Just before syrup reaches 260 degrees, beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Pour syrup slowly over egg whites, beating constantly, until all syrup is added. Continue beating until mixture holds its shape. Add vanilla. Pour into lightly buttered pan and mark into squares or drop from tip of spoon onto waxed paper in individual peaks. If desired, both "Have You Tried Ac-cent?" It's wonderful! Thousands of housewives are saying, "And so that you can have the same extra-excellent meals these women enjoy, do get a shaker of Ac-cent. It's like no other product on your grocery shelves. Ac-cent (monosodium glutamate) is a unique basic seasoning, for without adding any flavor of its own it intensifies and holds the natural flavors already in foods. It even restores good fresh flavors to leftovers! This test will show you how Ac-cent turns out very tasty eating."

Better get this "third shaker" today and keep it on your kitchen shelf alongside the salt and pepper.

I Like Breakfast to give me a peppy start on the day's work. You also? Then let me recommend my breakfast! It's hot "Cream of Wheat" and it supplies me with food energy so satisfyingly I feel like going to work!

Here's a tip from my test kitchen! If you've been having "Cream of Wheat" with sliced bananas—try mashing ripe bananas into the milk for a "pour-over." Yummy!

"Cream of Wheat" is a favorite breakfast with millions of American folks—for very good reasons. It has delicious flavor. And it's smooth. And tempting. And costs less than a penny a bowl! No trouble to cook, either. And, you know, Enriched 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" is both easy to fix and speedy. It's fully digestible in only 5 minutes of boiling, and so good for folks with its valuable Iron, Calcium, Phosphorus, Niacin and Vitamin B.

Plain Cooking Steps Out in sparkling flavor for Lent, if you use fresh lemons freely. Better keep a dozen Sunkist Lemons always handy. They're the best. Sunkist's sunny-tart flavor works lively magic with appetites for everyday dishes. There's nothing quite like the lift it gives to salads, vegetables, meat, fowl, fish—and their sauces. All are better with the tang of fresh lemons.

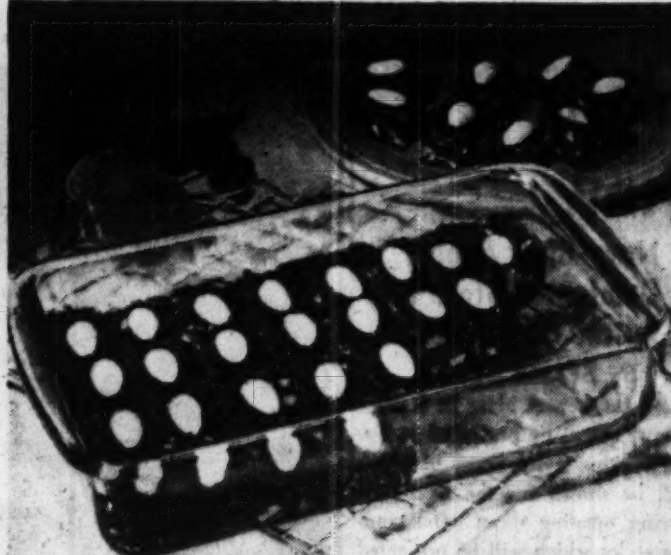

BUTTER 'N' NUTMEG SAUCE: Excellent with fresh or frozen trout and all fish fillets. In bottom of hot frying pan put 3 tablespoons butter; add the fish. When brown, turn and add a mixture of 1/2 cup soft butter, 3 tablespoons fresh Sunkist lemon juice and 1 teaspoon nutmeg. Brown; serve on deep platter with sauce poured over. Garnish with lemon wedges.

Adults Should Recall Their Youthful Days

By GLADYS BEVANS
Boiled down it comes to this: that a child's relation to everyday life is different from that of a grownup. If we can keep this in mind it will help us a lot in living with our children.

We can't be children again; we can't see with their eyes again. But we have been children; and that, plus our growing knowledge of children's growth and development, plus our imagination and remembrance of our childhood days, and our desire to do well by our young, should help us to enjoy them, and also to make them happy and grow strong and reasonably adjusted.

In those ways we have a great advantage over these children of our exodus—we're learning to live with them. They have never been adults. They have, really then, no mental or emotional background for getting our point of view; for understanding us and why we care so much about the things we care about which are not at all vital to them; order, quiet, clean woodwork, politeness, hands-and-face washing, et cetera.

Therefore, it is up to us who are grown to expect some all-around wisdom of ourselves, and to be willing to allow our children, in the months and years, to learn what grownups expect of them, and to gradually get some inkling of what makes us "tick."

We can bridge the great gulf that exists in years, in desires, in point of view between us and our children, only by love and forbearance and a constant attempt at understanding.

ARE YOU NERVOUS, IRRITABLE, HIGH-STRUNG

due to this functional 'middle-age' cause?

Then Read About This Amazing Medicine!

Are you between the ages of 30 and 50 and going through the functional "middle-age" period peculiar to women—the time when fertility ebbs away; do you suffer nervous, strangely restless, irritable feelings—due to this cause? Then start taking Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once to relieve such symptoms. Lydia Pinkham's Compound gives simply wonderful relief because it works through a woman's sympathetic nervous system.

Taken regularly (tastes swell in a little water or fruit juice)—Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against such female distress. If you suffer this

One-Meal-a-Day Fallacy Shown; It Slows You Up

Finds Balanced Foods Needed Instead of Fewer Meals

After three weeks of dieting, the author weighs himself and discovers to his horror that he has GAINED four pounds. For a copy of his Calorie Chart send a penny post card with your name and address on it to THE FAT BOY, The Atlanta Constitution.

By ELMER WHEELER
Chapter 4

I was bewildered. Maybe I was a medical case. A freak. Maybe food did turn to fat in me. Maybe air and water did make me fat.

I'd find out. I'd see my doctor. After a thorough examination, the kindly doc assured me that nothing was wrong with me organically—at least nothing that less food wouldn't help.

"But, Doc!" I protested weakly. "I just couldn't eat any less food than I'm already doing!"

HE SETTLED back then and for 20 minutes he told me the 1,001 errors of my self-administered dieting, my home-reducing methods.

For instance, he told me how my small unsentimental breakfasts and luncheons actually had more calories than if I'd eaten properly.

How exercise might tone me up, but I'd have to walk 36 miles to lose one pound of fat.

Thirty-six miles! Say, who could play 12 rounds of golf in one day? 216 holes! Yipes!

"CUT OUT just one doughnut he told me, 'and you won't be able to sleep in a hammock!'"

"Double orange juices," he explained, "are as fattening as a full bottle of beer."

"You can have eight bowls of consommé and not get half as fat as that one full bowl of creamed tomato you take on your no-diet luncheon will make you!" he revealed.

For a finishing touch, he told me that in reality my one meal a day was fattening me up faster than three scientifically balanced meals.

I LEARNED the fallacy of that one meal a day.

Not only are you perpetually hungry when you skip over the breakfast with toast and the the other hand, I could move fast all day long. Instead of getting weak off and on, I had pep perpetually.

I WAS beginning to catch on to this diet business at last—with the help of my doctor. Yes, sir, three normal meals per day thin you faster than one big one, but I didn't know that until he told me. So here's the best advice I can give anyone who wants to diet:

Always see your doctor first!

Fatties hate exercise. But we slave away at it—now and then—because we think it will reduce us.

So the most pleasant thing this fatty discovered in his study of calories was this:

Exercise won't reduce you!

I LEARNED that there's one big trouble with exercise: it works up an appetite. You burn up 200 calories mowing the lawn, and then, hungry as a horse, you gobble up 2,000.

You don't have to be Einstein to figure out that this leaves you 1,800 on the wrong side! And probably with a charley horse to boot.

Condensed from "The Fat Boy's Book" by Elmer Wheeler, Pub. Prentice-Hall Corp. General Features Corp.

(Tomorrow: False finds a rule for dieting that works.)

"Exercises won't reduce you."

Being slowed up due to lack of high-test foods, you are like a car with low-test gas. You can't go fast.

In going slow, you burn up less calories.

With three balanced meals, on Southern college students were urged Wednesday to strengthen the voice of a national student organization fighting a dual battle of representing American students and countering Communist propaganda.

Al L. Lowenstein, president of the National Student Association, speaking at Georgia Tech, said he is on a swing through the South to stir up interest in this region's using its voice on the national and international scene.

He addressed a meeting of the Tech NSA committee and other students and representatives from the Atlanta Division of the University of Georgia and Oglethorpe University. He previously had spoken at other Georgia colleges.

Bonzo, the Chimp, Steals Fox's New Farce Comedy

A farce-comedy, which tops Universal's hilarious story of a talking mule, moved into the Fox Theater Wednesday under the title "Bedtime for Bonzo"—a clever bit of hokum which features an educated chimpanzee.

This laugh-infested bit of foolishness is one of Hollywood's freshest approaches to building a giggle box in several years. Its one-hour and 23 minutes are devoted strictly to fun and all children, two to toothless, are sure to find it delightful.

"Bonzo" is the chimp who makes a chump out of his human co-stars as he cavorts about, stealing jewelry, serving as exhibit "A" in a college psychology class and in bringing Ronald Reagan and Diana Lynn together in a clever romantic twist. The chimp tops "Francis," the talking mule.

To recount any of the wacky proceedings that transpire would be to spoil the film's many surprises. Suffice to say it is loaded with fun.

Old Story, New Slant

A new slant is given an old story about Jesse James and his career as an infamous outlaw in the Paramount's new bill of fare—"The Great Missouri Raid," which opened Wednesday, featuring

General Tendencies — Slight accidents are a feature of this date although most persons will find that some lucky break will prevent serious results. Just the same it seems a good plan to avoid speedy travel or impulsive changes throughout the day and to confine your efforts to your own home territory. Your prospects for making money are good and seem to be connected with people born in December—as if you might profit from their advice even if they are not particularly active themselves.

Autos Put Stocks Up At Close

NEW YORK, March 7—(AP)—

A stiffening in the motor shares

Wednesday provided the base for a rally in the stock market.

Prices turned upward after a two-day decline. The advance was modest, around a dollar a share among the leaders. Declines were held in somewhat the same range.

Volume expanded a bit on the upswing to 1,700,000 shares, the best in a couple of weeks. Tuesday in a declining market the volume contracted sharply to 1,490,000 shares, the lowest in six months.

That action was heartening to the bulls who cite it as evidence of fundamental strength of the market. Some of the more fussy analysts would like to see considerably more volume on the rise before making a pronouncement.

The market started out steady with a number of individual issues doing much better than average on the high side because of corporate news. The automobiles took over leadership. Overnight news was good. The government relaxed restrictions on the use of aluminum and copper in automobiles and other durable goods for consumers. Some contended that the change would be little help to the automobile makers but all agreed that loosening of restrictions was a step in the right direction.

Treasury Statement

DuPont Shows Benefits Of Southern Exposure

That genial old Southern industry, the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., issued its annual report Wednesday, a document which should be satisfying to all concerned.

Particularly should the report cause the Southerner to experience a glow of content, for in a way it is a progress chart of how well our Yankee-stirred baby is responding to a warm climate and grins-and-gravy living.

Soon after the surrender of Japan in 1945, the du Pont Company, like a lot of industries and folks, got an itch to move. It needed a bigger, better house.

As long as one can remember du Pont has been a name synonymous with big Yankee industry. It was, in fact, so "Yankee" that it became a favorite whipping boy of the Southern politician, along with Wall Street.

When du Pont began house hunting, it caught the Chattanooga choo-choo. It's first new postwar quarters was a $20,000,000 plant in Chattanooga, Tenn., for the manufacture of rayon fibers. Since that time, the plant has tripled its initial capacity.

The Chattanooga plant, which incidentally employs hundreds of Georgia mountaineers, was only a starter in du Pont's march Southward. Since that time, the Company has spent $550,000,000 in plant construction, mostly for eight additional new plants, six of which were located in the South, one in the border state of West Virginia and the other, a comparatively small formaldehyde outfit, in Toledo, Ohio. Major expansions of existing plants, moreover, have been at a nylon yarn plant in Martinsville, Va., and an acetate rayon plant in Waynesboro, Va.

In its annual report, du Pont says "the products of these new plants and plant expansions represented 35 percent of the Company's 1950 sales; the new investment, and working capital required therefor, represented 45 percent of the total average operating investment in 1950."

Du Pont will also build and operate the billion-dollar hydrogen-bomb plant on the east bank of the Savannah River near Augusta. In the blueprint stage are even more tremendous projects for the Company in the South.

Du Pont's Southern march is, to some extent, a measure of industry's general turn in this direction. More and more the nation's manufacturers are branching out into the Southeast and the Southwest. Particularly is this true of textiles and chemicals.

How they are getting along may be measured by a further look at du Pont's report for 1950:

"Total sales for the year hit a new record high of $1,297,000,000," the du Pont report states. "This was $272,000,000, or 27 percent, higher than the sales figure for the previous year of 1949."

The Company reported an average operating investment for 1950 of $1,408,000,000, 11 percent higher than in 1949, and 124 percent more than in 1940. Net earnings on the operating investment were $187,000,000, a return of 13.3 percent, compared with $134,000,000, or 10.5 percent, for 1949.

Total earnings applicable to each share of common stock were $6.59, compared with $4.52 in 1949. Common stock dividends paid during 1950 amounted to $3.35 as against $3.40 paid in 1949.

Walker Legal Head
Harold M. Walker, Marietta attorney, will head the legal department of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation's Georgia Division. James V. Carmichael, its vice president and general manager, announced Wednesday.

Walker served on the legal staff of the Bell Aircraft Corporation from 1943 to 1945 as assistant to Carl Michael, who was first legal counsel and later general manager of the Corporation's Marietta operations.

Now a partner in the firm of Walker & Henderson, Walker was formerly associated with the firm of Blair & Carmichael in Marietta. He is a native of Monroe, attended the University of Georgia and Emory University law schools, and received his LL.B. from Woodrow Wilson Law School.

Safety Convention
The Atlanta Safety Council and The Atlanta Convention and Visitors Bureau co-operated in landing a whooping-sized convention for the City in 1952. It's the Southern Safety Conference, which pulls about 2,000 of the outstanding safety experts of the South and nation. The big meet is slated for March 2-4 at the Biltmore. The 1950 convention, just completed, was in Birmingham, Ala.

Salad Oil Rollback
The Government Wednesday rolled back manufacturers' ceiling prices for vegetable shortening and salad oils from one to two cents a pound. The Office of Price Stabilization, in announcing the action putting dollars-a-cent on the manufacturers' shivered prices, said the order is likely to affect existing retail prices, however.

Transport Toll
Charles S. Baxter, a Washington, director of public relations for the Defense Transportation Administration, will address the Atlanta chapter of the National Defense Transportation Association at 12:30 p. m. Thursday at the Henry Grady Hotel. The more

'Most Who Need Legal Aid Are Not Getting It'

American Bar President Here
Put's Figure at 65 Per Cent

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

A majority of the people who need legal services are not getting them—mainly because they don't understand the legal profession," Cody Fowler, of Tampa, Fla., president of the American Bar Association, said here Wednesday.

Fowler, a big jovial, white-haired man who has practiced law some 34 years, is in Atlanta to address the Southeastern regional convention of the American Bar Association. Nearly 1,000 lawyers are attending the four-day meeting at the Biltmore Hotel.

Fowler said a survey showed that 65 percent of the people polled needed legal service of one type or another.

He said the American Bar Association was trying to give the public a "better understanding of the profession." He added the Association was seeking to help the lower-income groups by (1) legal aid societies and (2) lawyers' reference plans which make legal service available at low cost to the client.

Fowler denied vigorously that most lawyers today are specialists. "Seventy-five percent of the lawyers," he noted, "are general practitioners who practice alone."

Fowler said the Association represents 140,000 lawyers in the country. He said there was no shortage of lawyers—but there "always is room in the profession for the man who is able, willing to work and to live up to the canons and traditions of the profession."

Fowler said he thought there were "too many laws."

"A democracy," he opined, "is not the most efficient method of government—but it's the best."

Fowler will be among speakers at the first general session at 9:30 a. m. Thursday at the Biltmore Hotel. A. Edward Smith, of Columbus, president of the Georgia Bar Association, and A. C. Lattimer, president of the Atlanta Bar Association, also will speak.

Harold Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania and former governor of Minnesota, will speak at the banquet at 6:30 p. m. Friday.

Strikers Spurn Textile Pact Extension Plea

BOSTON, March 7.—(AP)—Cotton and rayon wage negotiations ended in a stalemate Wednesday when the CIO Textile Workers Union rejected a management demand to extend the present contract 90 days beyond their March 15 expiration date.

Neither side yielded from its stand on the wage question and the discussions came to a close after Mariano Bishop, cotton and rayon director of the TWU, remarked that "all we're doing here is antagonizing each other."

A new meeting is scheduled for Thursday and Emil Rieve, president of TWU, said that what happens then is "in the lap of the gods."

"We know where you are," he told representatives of the New Bedford and Fall River textile associations. "You know where we are. If you have a change of heart we are ready to talk any time, any place."

He gave no indication that the union was considering cutting its demands that have brought about a threat of a strike of 200,000 cotton-rayon workers in the nation. And the two associations, bargaining leaders of the industry, showed no signs of meeting the demands.

2 Men Caught After Jump Into River

WAYCROSS, March 7.—(AP)—Two MacClenny, Fla., men jumped into the St. Marys River Tuesday in an effort to elude federal and state revenue officers.

But Johnnie Johns and Junior Wilkinson were bagged anyway by the officers and charged with operating a "moonshine" still on the banks of St. Marys, near St. George, in Charlton County.

The revenue agents said the still consisted of a 600-gallon steel pot and 26-gallon barrel fermenters. About 1,200 gallons of mash and 22 gallons of whiskey were confiscated, officers said.

The men were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner, Mrs. Alma Hardy here and released Wednesday on bonds of $500 each.

Roosevelt-Ross Plans Reported

MIAMI, Fla., March 7.—(AP)—The Miami Herald said Wednesday night that Elliott Roosevelt plans to marry Mrs. Minerva Ross "appears to hinge on when she obtains a divorce from her husband."

In a story by Staff Writer Gwen Harrison, the Herald said: "The Florida Winter colony buzzed with the wedding rumor following a report that Roosevelt was overheard planning to be 'married on the 15th.'"

"Friends seemed agreed that the couple planned to wed but the question was 'the 15th of what?'" Mrs. Ross' attorney in New York was quoted as saying she had not yet filed for divorce from Dr. Rex L. Ross of Santa Monica, Calif.

Cattlemen Meet
WAYCROSS—Ware County Cattlemen's Association met Wednesday night and plans were discussed for co-operation in the Fat Cattle Sale to be held here May 14 at the Waycross Livestock Market. E. C. Hall is president of the association.

Catnapper Evades Police Trap Here

A police trap to nab Atlanta's "catnapper" flopped early Wednesday when the culprit failed to come for the 15 cent ransom.

Detective Harry McCollister and R. E. Finley, assigned to the "catnapping" case after Mrs. Lewis M. Wolford reported receiving a ransom note, stood a midnight vigil near the woman's home at 811 St. Charles Ave., N. E., but failed to get even a glimpse of the man or the cat.

The officers said Mrs. Wolford reported receiving the ransom note in Monday's mail. She said the animal, a pet of the neighborhood, disappeared six weeks ago.

Demand for Labor Makes Jobs for Older People

By WELLINGTON WRIGHT

Increasing demand for labor in defense production projects is proving a boon to people in the higher age brackets.

The Monthly Review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta for February says that the "tight" labor market has forced employers to relax both age and experience standards. As an indication of this, the publication cites the experience of the Miami area:

"In this area, persons placed by the state employment office of 45 years or over increased from 8.5 percent of total placements in January of last year to 22.1 percent at the end of the year."

This situation, the publication indicates, is one of the important reasons why total non-farm employment in the Sixth Federal Reserve District is now at record levels and is still on the upswing. On this topic, the publication continues:

"The index of manufacturing employment for the District States in December, 1950, stood at 152 percent of the 1939 average. For the district as a whole, food processing was the only type of manufacturing to show a loss of employment from December, 1949. On the other hand, increases of more than 10 percent were reported by the apparel, primary and fabricated metals, transportation equipment and pulp paper industries. Slight declines in construction employment were reported from the previous month, but there was no record of employment having been below the level of a year earlier."

"In each of three States, Florida, Georgia and Tennessee, the only ones for which exact data are available, construction employment in December, 1950, was 25 percent greater than on the corresponding date a year earlier."

The publication reports that a few "pockets of unemployment" still exist in the Southeast, but it attributes this situation to difficulties some industries are having in shifting over to full defense production.

"The defense attorneys attacked the Government's opening as 'inflammatory,' and asked Judge Irving Kaufman, to make clear to the jurors the indictment charges conspiracy to commit espionage; and that Communism is not on trial in the case. Defense motions for mistrial on constitutional grounds and on additional grounds the indictment against the defendants was vague and indefinite, were denied by the court."

The defendants are Julius Rosenberg, 35 years old, an electrical engineer, his wife, Ethel, 35, and Morton Sobell, electronics expert. They were arrested, with others, last Summer, were indicted last November and were put to trial Tuesday.

Irene Queen--A Good Night!

MARIETTA, March 7.—Mrs. Irene Queen, wife of a Marietta Lieutenant fighting with the Tank Corps in Korea, resigned as "Queen for a Day" here Wednesday.

Lt. Burton requested radio station WFOM to dedicate the song, "Goodnight Irene," to his wife Wednesday in observance of their eighth wedding anniversary.

WFOM and Marietta merchants decided that was hardly enough recognition. Given the day off by her employer, she was treated to a TV show, a special party at Dobbs Air Force base, a radio program and gifts from merchants.

Her escort for evening dinner was Marietta's bachelor Mayor, Sam Welsh. A private chauffeur and theater tickets were among the other treats.

Beetle Infestation

Marietta City Council has been advised by the Dept. of Agriculture that a portion of its city in Pine Forest is infested with the dangerous White Fringed beetles.

Agriculture Dept. spokesmen said the city might be placed under quarantine unless the pest threat is eliminated.

Under quarantine, all kinds of shipments of any kind, would have to be sprayed with an insecticide before it could leave the city.

Smyrna Expands

Smyrna City Council has incorporated 243 more acres into its city limits, where 600 home housing projects will soon be constructed.

Council agreed to spend some $175,000 for new water mains and sewer lines in the newly incorporated area.

Stewart-Murray Realty Company announced it will construct 40 new store buildings as a shopping district for the housing project.

Lumpkin Speaker

RICHLAND—Chaplain and Mrs. Dan P. Jenkins, of Fort Benning, formerly of Korea, will be guest speakers at the Business Women's Federation meeting of the Summerhill Association Thursday evening at the Lumpkin Baptist Church.

3 Accused As 'Traitors' In Spy Trial

Special to The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, March 7.—The Government told a jury in Federal court here Wednesday it will produce evidence the three defendants in the world's first atom bomb spy trial conspired to steal the chamber's limits, branded the defendants as "traitorous Americans," characterized them as "worse than the enemy," and "worse than the enemy."

U. S. Attorney Irving Saypol, in a low-toned opening address to the jury that barely carried to the chamber's limits, branded the defendants as "traitorous Americans," characterized them as "worse than the enemy," and "worse than the enemy."

The defense attorneys attacked the Government's opening as "inflammatory," and asked Judge Irving Kaufman, to make clear to the jurors the indictment charges conspiracy to commit espionage; and that Communism is not on trial in the case. Defense motions for mistrial on constitutional grounds and on additional grounds the indictment against the defendants was vague and indefinite, were denied by the court."

The defendants are Julius Rosenberg, 35 years old, an electrical engineer, his wife, Ethel, 35, and Morton Sobell, electronics expert. They were arrested, with others, last Summer, were indicted last November and were put to trial Tuesday.

Surviving are her husband; three daughters, Mrs. J. N. Drake, Mrs. Arthur Smith, both of Montebello, Calif., and Mrs. Irene Dunn, of Atlanta, and four sons, Clark, Ray, Everett and Clyde Watkins.

George A. Young, 35, an electrical engineer, his wife, Ethel, 35, and Morton Sobell, electronics expert. They were arrested, with others, last Summer, were indicted last November and were put to trial Tuesday.

2 Army Captains To Become One

An Army captain will wed an Army captain at the Atlanta General Depot April 7.

The bride, Capt. Iona Sherman, assistant supply officer of the maintenance shop.

The bridegroom, Capt. James J. Connolly, engineer maintenance officer.

Both captains entered service in 1942. Both have been at Conley about a year. Both will have 30-day furloughs for a honeymoon.

Capt. Sherman, only WAC at Conley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Sherman, of Seward Neb. Capt. Connolly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Connolly, Sr., of Germantown, Pa.

The wedding, the bride confides, will be "just as military as possible."

2 U. S. Agencies Moving 85 Here

Two Washington, D. C., Federal agencies will transfer a portion of their staffs to Atlanta in a program aimed at decentralizing Federal activities.

Sixty members of the Payroll Unit, Production and Marketing Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and 25 persons from the Labor Department's Bureau of Employee Compensation will be moved here, a Washington announcement stated Wednesday. A total of 8,183 persons will be involved in the nation-wide decentralization program.

H-Bomb Plant Project Office Opening Set

AUGUSTA, March 7.—(AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission announced Wednesday its Savannah River plant project offices will set up in South Carolina sometime between April 15 and May 15.

The project operations staff and the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company, which will build the plant, will move at that time into an administration building on the site, near Ellenton in Richland County.

This move will be in line with plans announced last November by the AEC and du Pont. Use of the basic idea of the hydrogen bomb office space in Augusta has been on a temporary basis.

Work on the new office building is well advanced, the AEC said. Grading has been going on several weeks and prefabricated units for the building are being received.

The building, going up near the intersection of South Carolina Highways 28 and 19, will be used only during the construction phase of the $600,000,000 project. Later, permanent buildings will be erected.

With 6,000 construction workers expected on the job by July, the AEC announced that a warehouse at the Ellenton railroad siding is under construction, that the laying of plant railroad lines and drilling of water wells is proceeding, that construction equipment and materials are being unloaded daily at Ellenton, that construction by the South Carolina Electric and Gas Company of a 110,000 kilowatt power line across the project area is continuing.

Young School Musicians Given Ratings

Harassed judges, anxious participants and hovering mothers Wednesday overflowed the rampways at the Atlanta Division of the University of Georgia for Elementary Day of the Fifth District Music festival.

Climax of the day came when judges announced names of individual youngsters and groups winning superior ratings. Those named in the top flight, thereby earning the privilege of taking part in the State Festival in Millersville, included:

School choir groups: Clairmont, Garden Hills, Grant Park, Highland, West Haven, Centre Hills and the Marietta Boys' Choir. Bands: West End and East Atlanta. Folk dancing: Highland, St. Henry, Garden Hills, Grant Park, Big Hill and Bolton schools. Piano: Dorothy Du Rand, Mervin Gardner, Louise Blalock, Kirkwood, Jimmy Hale, Avondale, Chas. E. Brubaker, Northside, Harris Street, Beavertown, Winona Park, and Larry Constanter, Iman.

Violin: Edward Pelchard, Grand; Dick Holloway, Murphy; Raymond Paige, North Fulton; Arthur Lee, Murphy; Peggy Wilson, North Fulton; and Bill Chasen, North Fulton. String quartets: Chas. E. Brubaker, Northside, Harris Street, Beavertown, Winona Park, and Larry Constanter, Iman.

Elementary violin: Diana Baker, East Atlanta; Ben Trimm, Freestone Street; Ned Young, Inman; and Emma Levy, Morningstar. Cornet: John Head and Butch Simms, West End. Drums: Wally Eldon, Chamblee. Drummers: Michael Hein, Israel Hill and Sammy Williams, West End. Alto saxophone: Pat Coffey, East Atlanta. Baritone: Bill Harper, West End. Bass: Harry East and Jimmy Kornell, Lena Cox, rated superior.

Barbara Butler, Northside; Barbara Youngblood, West End; Buck Young, East Atlanta; Kitty Kelly, East Atlanta; Elizabeth Riley, East Atlanta; and John Brubaker, Northside. Trombone: Tom Rowdin, East Atlanta and Willie Walker, West End. Euphonium: Bobby Wright, Cascade Heights; and John Brubaker, Northside. Superior ratings went to a record number of 21 talent winners.

It took an all-white jury only 45 minutes to reach the verdict of guilty against Smith Harvey.

The murder charge grew out of the pistol slaying of two brothers, Jodie Godley, 29, and Lonnie Godley, 24, and their companion, Wilton Lee McAlhany, 20, on nearby Lady's Island last February 17.

Harvey was tried only for the death of Jodie Godley, however. The defendant took the stand in his own defense. He testified that he was returning from a Negro night spot late at night and came upon a parked automobile containing four white men near his home. Harvey said that someone in the car spoke to him and then asked him an insulting question. He said that when he answered them, all the men started getting out of the car and one of them struck him in the face. He drew his .45 caliber pistol and started firing when one of them said, "Let's kill him," the Negro testified.

The State in the presentation of the case emphasized that two of the victims had been shot in the side and one in the back.

W. C. Swain, the only surviving member of the white quartet in the automobile, could not identify Harvey as the man who shot his companions. Swain said on cross-examination that all four of them had been drinking.

W. C. Swain, the only surviving member of the white quartet in the automobile, could not identify Harvey as the man who shot his companions. Swain said on cross-examination that all four of them had been drinking.

State To Join In Camden Suit Defense

Attorney Gen. Eugene Cook said Wednesday the State would intervene in an education case filed against Camden County Tuesday by five Negroes.

The legal department chief said he is intervening on the grounds that the State Education Department is affected by the suit.

The suit, filed before Judge Frank Scarlett in U. S. District Court at Brunswick, did not seek to break down segregation. The Negroes are petitioning Scarlett to declare that it is their Constitutional right to be placed on an equal basis in teacher salaries, buildings, curricula and other facilities.

Teen-age Mademoiselle Adopted at Hoke Smith

By FAT LIVINGSTON

Vivacious Lucienne Glapin, of Paris, speaks little English, so her classmates at Hoke Smith are demanding courses in French.

Interpreter Ed S. Cook, Jr., school counselor, used the classroom French he learned at Tech High to translate Lucienne's rapid French and Gallic gestures into a Southern drawl.

As she adjusts herself to the school, she is being coached in English and is taking courses in art and music appreciation. "For the moment, the language—it's very hard for me," sighed the petite mademoiselle, who docked in New York, Jan. 24 after a 12-day voyage from Genoa on the Italian liner, Vulcania.

Her aunt, Mrs. Max Butler, 592 Washington St., S. W., met her in New York, bringing the orphaned girl to Atlanta to live. Here only a week, Lucienne is already answering to "Lucy Ann," a deep-South doubles name sounding much like her own.

Tawny-haired "Lucy Ann's" dancing hazel eyes spark fire if boys call her "Red." Her remarkable coloring is unusual in France. "They don't call girls 'Red' there," she protests, "I don't like it!"

English Teacher Margaret Swann, a fluent French speaker, is giving the lively 17-year-old three English lessons daily. Miss Swann plans to take her to meetings of the Atlanta French Club for "she has a beautiful French accent—she can't lose it while she's learning English!"

"Enormous" is "Lucy Ann's" wide-eyed description of Hoke Smith. It's much larger than the public school she attended. Amazed at pupils speaking in class, she says, "Teachers do the talking at home."

American people are gentle and amiable in her estimation, but Southern cooking isn't comparable to the French cuisine. "There's too much sugar and too many salads!" she exclaimed. "Lucy Ann" is lonely for her friends in France, but she is making new ones here. Her sister, Katia, is still in Paris; her brother, Maurice, is serving in the French Army in Indochina. Cook expects "Lucy Ann" will be speaking English well enough to go into a regular course in September. She'll certainly be at home at Hoke Smith.

Tax Relief Proposed for Georgia GIs

The Georgia Legislature will be asked in January to grant special exemptions on State income taxes to Georgians in the Armed Forces.

During World War II, the Legislature passed an emergency act exempting from taxation the first $1,500 service pay and another act granting servicemen an extension of time for filing and paying taxes. State Income Tax Director Fielding Dillard said Wednesday he had suggested granting special relief for servicemen at the recent session of Legislature. He expressed hope the next General Assembly would pass such bills.

In a letter to The Constitution, J. H. Johnson, of 744 Delmar Ave., S. E., scored the "attempts of the State of Georgia to collect income taxes from servicemen on money earned in New York, on the West Coast, and other places." He said if this is Georgia law, it should be repealed immediately.

Dillard pointed out that Georgia law requires persons who maintain their legal residence in Georgia to file income-tax returns—regardless of where they earn their money. March 15 is the deadline for filing returns.

Donations To Red Cross Now $146,844

Red Cross donations had reached more than one-fourth of its $525,000 goal Wednesday when an additional $33,258 brought the total contributions to this year's campaign to $146,844.

Reports were made Wednesday by representatives of the Initial Gifts, Employees' and Public Employees' Divisions meeting at the YMCA. Of the $33,258 reported, $12,400 was accredited to the Initial Gifts Division, $15,387 to the Employees' Division and the remaining $5,471 to the Public Employees' Division.

D. R. Chas. Allen, Pastor of Grace Methodist Church, spoke, and Charles Jagels, of Davison's, one of the three General Campaign Chairmen, presided.

Two report luncheons are on tap for Thursday at 12:30 p. m. Journal Editor Wright Bryan will address members meeting at the Canvass, County-Towns, and Tri-Cities' Divisions, meeting at the Henry Grady Hotel, while Atty. Hugh Dorsey will speak to workers of the Business and Office Buildings Divisions at the YMCA.

Bloodmobile Visit Planned at LaGrange

Constitution State News Service
LAGRANGE, March 7 — Malcolm B. Huie, Chairman of the Recruitment Program for the Red Cross Bloodmobile in LaGrange, and Mrs. L. L. Goode, Jr., Executive Secretary of the local Red Cross, met with the Negro Handicrafters Club members to discuss plans for the next Bloodmobile visit.

The Bloodmobile unit is scheduled to be at the Kelley Grammar School (Negro) May 1, and will be sponsored by the Handicrafters Club.

EAT ANYTHING WITH FALSE TEETH!
Corn-on-the-cob, hard candy, nuts... you can eat them all! Simply lay soft strip of Brimms' Plastic-Liner on upper, lower or partial plate. Bite and it molds perfectly. Your plate fits snugly and stays that way because Brimms' Plastic-Liner hardens permanently in your plate. Even on old rubber plates you get good results for six months to a year or longer.
Easy to Re-Fit or Tighten False Teeth
One application gives instant relief from slipping, rocking plates that cause sore gums. You can talk without embarrassment. Forget the bother of temporary "sticks" to hold plates in. Tasteless, odorless, harmless to you and your plates. Removable according to directions. Money back if not completely satisfied.
